Big State, Big Country.
Grace Sparkes Territory.
Ed McGinley and Grandma Gray.
16 Railroad Presidents.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 16.

THEY TEACH you to be energetic in this big state. On the Santa Fe Chief you are awakened at 4 to get off at Ash Fork at 10 minutes to 5. Hospitable citizens, Messrs. Hanna, Murray and Shirley, are there to welcome and drive you to Prescott in a Fred Harvey Cadillac. The driver, wearing a 10-gallon hat, gives you new ideas of speed. Around the curves of Hassayampa Trail, with nothing between you and eternity, waiting 10,000 feet below in the canyon. The taciturn driver says:

"A good car—32,000 miles; valves ground, spark plugs cleaned, brakes relined once, nothing else."

STARS IN Arizona are amazingly bright. One toward the east must have been made especially for this state. It makes the envious thin moon look pale.

AT PRESCOTT, which used to be Fort Whipple, where Uncle Sam fought the Apaches, Miss Grace Sparkes, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is waiting at the Hassayampa Hotel, where 150 gather for breakfast at 6:45. Miss Sparkes said:

"We'd be more, only we were all at an unemployment relief party until late this morning."

Everybody's health in Arizona seems good. For breakfast large pork chops, pancakes, with a quarter pound of jelly rolled up in each, bacon, hot biscuit, jet black coffee.

WISHING TO make some feeble impression at such a gathering you mention a 7,000-acre place in the state of New Jersey, Says Grace Sparkes:

"Suppose you know that Yavapai County, in which you now are, is as big as the whole state of New Jersey, and that's after cutting five other Arizona counties out of Yavapai, and there is another Arizona county, Coconino, containing the Grand Canyon, bigger than this."

L. L. RUFFNER, president of the Chamber of Commerce, undertaker by profession, is able to devote his whole time to the public because the extraordinary health of Yavapai County gives him nothing to do professionally, unless some Easterner goes off the mountain road.

Merely living to be old is nothing out here. You are requested to consider Ed McGinley, aged 102, who sleeps every night as guest of the state in the Pioneers' Home. Every morning he starts out in the mountains prospecting for gold, walking up grades of 45 degrees, returning to his friends in the evening.

Daniel J. Seaman, who looks after the pioneers, of whom Grandma Gray is 103, shows you his printing office there. In his weekly Stars he was first in Arizona to print this column.

EARL SANDE, champion jockey, learned to ride on Prescott's little bull ring track. And in Prescott, Mergenthaler developed his linotype machine. Miss Sparkes says:

"In fact, there is no excuse for living outside of this country. Everything you want is here, roses perpetually blooming. And not far off pine trees and perpetual snow."

LEAVING PRESCOTT, to which this column will return later, the car with the cowboy driver goes on 100 miles farther to this prosperous city, center of the world's greatest single irrigated tract of land. The Roosevelt Dam supplies the water. The Western Fruit Jobbers' Association has a convention attended by 16 railroad presidents, one railroad chairman, 30 railroad vice presidents: Gen. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania, President Paul Shoup, of the Southern Pacific, speak at a luncheon of about 1,000 in the open air, an airplane taking photographs.

YOU KNOW why so many big railroad men are there when you learn that the rich irrigated soil of this valley sends out thousands of car loads of melons, lettuce and other products. You meet one man whose company cultivates 29,000 irrigated acres, tractors working 24 hours a day the year around. A farmer who uses his tractor for two weeks, then puts it away to rust, can't compete with that.

MORE ABOUT this state tomorrow. You ought to see Arizona with one county bigger than New Jersey, its total population less than that of Newark, plenty of room, wonderful opportunities here. When you come bring money. And don't forget to stop at Prescott, and ask for Grace Sparkes.

Then come here and talk city with W. W. Knorp, the newspaper monopolist of Phoenix, and from here travel down to Tuscon, on to Nogales. Here Mexico begins.

IF CLIMATE interests you, if you would be rid of sinus or other trouble, come to this state. The crowd sitting outdoors at luncheon yesterday wore their hats to guard off the hot sunshine.

FEW REALIZE what this nation has to offer. Arizona is one of the very best possessions with potentialities and certainties of wealth undreamed of.

BOY RESCUES GIRLS, CHUM FROM RIVER

Drags Them From Car After 40-Foot Plunge Into Icy Allegheny at Brackenridge

John McMahon, 18-year-old Central Catholic High School student, was acclaimed a hero today in saving two girls and his boy chum from drowning after their car plunged down a 40-foot embankment into the Allegheny River at Brackenridge, last night.

McMahon, who resides at 613 Kirtland street, his fellow student, John Eastley, 17, of 7007 Bennett street with Betty Brant, 16, of 7300 Race street, and Dorothy Burger, 16, of 7415 Hermitage street, the latter two students at Holy Rosary High School, started for Natrona, where the Central Catholic High was to play basketball.

Mr. McMahon

Steam from the radiator obscured the vision of McMahon, who was driving. In Mile Lock lane, Brackenridge, he failed to see a turn in the road, kept going straight ahead, and ran over the embankment.

LANDS IN WATER

The machine landed right side up in 15 feet of water. McMahon crawled through an open window at his side, pulled Miss Brant out and lifted her to the top of the car, so that her head was above water. He smashed in another window and aided Dorothy out of the car, then assisted Eastley from the machine. Betty couldn't swim and McMahon helped her ashore. Eastley aided Dorothy, who was

FUND FOR DAVIS QUIZ VOTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—The Senate today approved another $50,000 for expenses of the Nye Campaign Funds Investigating Committee.

There was no debate, although Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, had indicated previously he would oppose its immediate consideration.

Chairman Nye at once arranged to hold a hearing later in the day of a score of witnesses for Senator Davis (Rep.), Pennsylvania, whose seat Nye would declare vacant on grounds of excessive expenditures in behalf of the ticket headed by the former labor secretary.

These witnesses had appeared voluntarily today to testify at a hearing which Nye called off last night because of lack of funds.

SUBPENAS CANCELED

Telegraphic subpenas sent Dr. F. H. Fredericks and Attorney Ralph H. Frank, to appear in Washington today, were canceled last night when it appeared the Nye committee had no more funds to prosecute its investigation. Neither had received a second summons to attend the hearings arranged after the Senate approved another $50,000 for the committee.

Today's Bluebird

By JUDGE D. PAULSON FOSTER

(A private in the A. E. F.)

How gullible my companions and myself were was proved by Private Haggerty, a former circus man.

We were nearing the coast of France. We entered a river. Haggerty spread the word that it was the River Rhine and that we were en route to the Kaiser's Castle. It was some time before I found it was the River Gironde and that we were far away from Germany.

Kaiser Cursed By King George Before Pershing

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief, American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPTER V.

Succeeding chapters of "My Experiences in the World War" will appear daily and Sunday exclusively in the Sun-Telegraph.

I was a guest at luncheon at Buckingham Palace June 11, 1917, with the American Ambassador, Walter Hines Page, and Mrs. Page. The King, the Queen and Princess Mary were present. There was an air of charm and simplicity at the palace that permitted a freedom and intimacy in the conversation. The plain fare was quite in keeping with the food situation throughout England.

After luncheon the King, the Ambassador and I stood near a window overlooking the garden, which, as His Majesty explained, instead of growing flowers, was producing potatoes. The King told of the Kaiser's visit to London a few years before and how he had brought his chief of secret service along and put him up at one of the hotels to learn all he could while the Kaiser himself was a guest at Buckingham Palace.

Gen. Pershing

His Majesty spoke bitterly of the inhumanity of the Germans, dwelling especially on the night bombing of London. Pointing to the beautiful statue of Queen Victoria just outside the window, the King suddenly exclaimed:

"The Kaiser, G— d— him, has even tried to destroy the statue of his own grandmother."

For a moment I was surprised at his words, but I quickly realized that it was a solemn expression of profound indignation, and not profanity.

After leaving the palace I called on Gen. Sir William Robertson, Chief of the General Staff. He was a rugged, heavy-set, blunt soldier, of Scotch descent, whose record in the army had been exceptional, in that he had risen from the grade of private to his then high position.

As he sipped his tea I explained our plan for the organization of our armies by using the small regular force and the National Guard as a nucleus. As the British themselves had gone through the same experience two years before, I stressed the fact that it would take considerable time.

Wants Troops With British

Robertson Points to Anglo-Saxon Unity to Support Plea for Reinforcements.

Like all the British officials, he was much in favor of having our forces serve with or near their own. He pointed out that we were both Anglo-Saxons, spoke the same language, and gave other reasons to support his views.

It seemed necessary to explain in detail that as the American Navy was working with the British Navy we should probably plan to place our army beside the French if there was to be any preference. It appeared logical that we should do this, as we were to operate on French soil and use French ports, railways and material. The main thing, I went on to say, was to form our own army as soon as possible for use wherever it seemed best.

I emphasized our lack of tonnage and told him that we must have additional shipping if we were to bring over an army worth while, but his reaction to this was not encouraging. He said he thought that it was entirely out of the question for them to provide us with any British shipping, as they were already in sore straits to find vessels for their own national necessities.

Pessimistic About Shipping

English Offer No Encouragement Concerning Transportation Needs of United States

At Parliament House I met several of the members and had tea on the veranda overlooking the Thames with Mr. Winston Churchill, then Minister of Munitions. Unusually well informed on American affairs, he showed the keenest interest in our plans and prospects. The equipment of our armies was naturally one of mutual concern, and I found him ready to provide British artillery if necessary, but we had already practically decided to adopt the French types of artillery.

I called on Mr. David Lloyd George, the Prime Minister. He went right to the point and asked when troops would be organized and trained and the numbers we expected to send over. He was cordial enough and expressed a desire to assist us in every possible manner, but when I stressed our need of

DEFY SENATE IN POWER STRIFE

Board Hires Old Employes, Keeping Russell, King Out; Battle Over Funds Looms

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—The Power Commission today reinstated William V. King as chief accountant, but refused to re-employ Charles A. Russell, who was dismissed last month as solicitor.

By M. L. RAMSAY,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The new Federal Power Commission defied the Senate yesterday by reappointing nearly all the old commission's employes, while permitting the dismissals of Chief Accountant William V. King and Solicitor Charles A. Russell to stand.

This move came in the midst of the smouldering Senate fight to oust three of the commissioners, in protest against the King and Russell dismissals. Senate ouster forces awaited a move by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, to start a Senate committee investigation of the dismissals and of the commissioners' "fitness."

MAY DENY SALARIES

Senator Walsh declined to act until the nominations of the commissioners come up in the regular order, following the scheduled debate over confirmation of Eugene Meyer, Jr., as governor of the Federal Reserve Board. The commissioners are listed on the Senate calendar as unconfirmed, and the ouster forces contend they are not legally in office.

Many senators are ready to vote to cut off their salaries when the appropriations bill comes up.

The commission left the posts of King and Russell vacant, and gave no indication when they will be filled. Their subordinates were ordered to work "under the supervision and direction of Commissioners McNinch and Draper." Draper is one of those the Senate seeks to oust, along with Chairman George Otis Smith and Commissioner Garsaud.

33 REAPPOINTED

Thirty-three civil service employes were reappointed by a resolution announced as "unanimously carried."

Reappointments were necessary because the Commission, in removing King and Russell, interpreted the law as automatically vacating all positions when the Commission was reorganized.

Francine Larrimore Ill, Show Canceled

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—Francine Larrimore, popular Broadway actress, who has been appearing in "Storm Song" here, was seriously ill today, possibly with pneumonia.

Last night she was unable to appear for her performance. Holders of tickets were refunded their money and the week's engagement was canceled.

Ritchie Hopes To Travel 30 Miles in Year

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Gov. Ritchie is only 30 miles away from Washington and thinks he can do it in a year.

He's trotted out his presidential plank and claims it's no diving board.

The governor is chinning himself on the future.

He is opposed to prohibition, bootstrap legislation, tall tariffs, short Republicans, soda water with two straws, haunted garages and other war debts, rocking chairs in one-arm lunchrooms, paging guests with megaphones, compulsory breathing and trap drums in small apartments.

Gov. Roosevelt also snapped both barrels of a presidential

Senate Must Show It Acknowledges No Dictator

DANIEL WEBSTER was speaking of and on behalf of the United States Senate when he said:

"WE KNOW NO MASTERS, WE ACKOWLEDGE NO DICTATORS."

In the issue now joined between the people and the Senate on the one side, and the President and the power trust on the other, the Senate will soon show by "actions which speak louder than words" whether its independence is as absolute today as it was in the days of Webster.

By its vote to reconsider the three Federal Power Commissioners, the Senate showed that the power trust was not its master.

But the Senate must show also that it acknowledges no dictator who may be acting in the interest of the power trust.

THE Senate well knew that Accountant King and Solicitor Russell were being penalized because throughout their years of service they had tried to protect the natural resources of this country from the raids of the power trust.

The Senate well knew that in dismissing their faithful public servants, the three commissioners responsible for this outrage were serving the power trust and not the people.

But an even more important question before the Senate than the fate of these two employes is the future of the Federal Power Commission.

Is that commission to be packed with tools of the power trust or is it to be controlled by the servants of the people?

The answer to that all-important question now rests WITH THE SENATE.

IF THE new commission is to be controlled by the servants of the people, the tools of the power trust must be driven from its membership.

If that commission is to be controlled by the representatives of the people, the Senate must positively rescind its confirmation of Commissioners Smith, Garsaud and Draper and must positively refuse hereafter to confirm any power trust nominees.

It is not enough for the Senate to know no master in the power trust. The Senate must also refuse to acknowledge any dictator in the White House.

Unless the independence of the Senate is as absolute in dealing with the President as it has shown itself to be in dealing wit hthe power trust, the Senate's fight to free the commission from the grip of the power trust will end in a sham battle.

Daniel Webster set a standard for the United States Senate which every senator in Congress today ought to deem it his high privilege and bounden duty bravely to uphold.

RED CROSS RAPS SENATE BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—Officials of the American Red Cross informed President Hoover today the organization is being seriously embarrassed in its appeal for a $10,000,000 drought relief fund by proposals in the Senate that Congress appropriate and give money to the Red Cross.

The President delayed luncheon for half an hour to discuss the situation with Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross; Secretary Lamont, Under Secretary Mills and Assistant Secretary Hope, of the Treasury, all members of the Red Cross central committee.

They reported unfavorable reaction to the appeal for funds because of the proposed relief measures in the Senate.

Meanwhile, the Democratic-Insurgent coalition prepared to force through the Senate a $25,000,000 appropriation for the Red Cross despite the White House opposition.

MUSMANNO TO PRESENT MEASURE

Legislator Seeks Substitution Of 'Property Guards' for Present State System

A bill providing for the abolition of coal and iron and industrial police and the establishment of a system of "Property Guards" will be introduced Monday night by Representative Michael M. Musmanno when the Legislature convenes at Harrisburg. Musmanno said he would endeavor to have his bill entered as "Bill No. 1."

Mr. Musmanno

Musmanno's bill repeals the present industrial police act.

It is entitled, "An Act Abolishing Coal and Iron Police and Industrial Police and Creating Property Guards—To Have Absolutely No Sovereign Rights."

Political leaders anticipate a hot battle over this bill and one or more others on the same question which are expected to be presented.

The coal and iron police question was stressed in Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot's platform. He pledged the people of Pennsylvania that by July 1 there will not be a coal and iron policeman in the commonwealth.

Pinchot will probably have a bill of his own on the police question. Musmanno's bill has not been sponsored by Pinchot.

Musmanno's bill provides that "Property Guards" must have

NINETEEN HURT IN N. Y. TUBE

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—The first car of a crowded seven-car train from Jersey City split a switch today and virtually cut itself in two against a curtain wall of steel and concrete in Hudson tubes terminal, Thirty-third street and Sixth avenue.

Of the 50 passengers in the car, 19 were injured—four of them seriously enough to require hospital attention. Only the fact the train was running slowly prevented a long death list, officials said.

Confusion and fright sent soot-begrimmed passengers scrambling for the doors in the darkness as broken glass showered around them.

Passengers were knocked from their feet by the impact. A sheet of blue flame shot up from the track and the lights went out. Women screamed and the terror stricken commuters scrambled over each other to get out as burning insulation filed the cars with smoke.

House May Compel Bankers to Testify

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—A sub-committee was ordered today to investigate the legal right of the House Banking Committee to force Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank of New York, and George W. Davison, of the Central Hanover Trust Company, to furnish information previously promised.

Teacher Leaves $40,000 To Cheer Veterans

With the exception of $150, Martha M. Shaw, retired Homewood school teacher, left her $40,000 estate to create a fund to provide cheer and happiness for disabled war veterans in the Pittsburgh district.

A former army captain, Attorney William B. McFall, and the Colonial Trust Company were named executors of the estate, according to the will, which was filed for probate today.

To Mrs. Jennette Jones, of New Castle, goes $150. The will suggests that the money from the fund be spent around Christmas time.

Miss Shaw was killed several weeks ago in an automobile accident in St. Petersburg, Fla.

BOY BURNED FIGHTING FIRE TO SAVE BROTHERS, SISTERS

EXPLOSION WRECKS HOME

Mother Escapes Death in Blasts; 2 Homes Ablaze in Aliquippa, Ambridge

Three persons were injured and 12 were rescued when a gas explosion damaged, estimated at $20,000, was caused by an explosion and fire here in Turtle Creek, Ambridge and Aliquippa last night and today.

In Turtle Creek, fire followed the explosion at the home of Mrs. Grace Henkel, and her five children, at 1004 Oak street. Gas was blamed.

The three Henkel children, ranging from a babe in arms to 13 years, aroused Matthew Hamady and his wife of 1724 Taylor street, Aliquippa, at 2:15 a.m. today, and led to the discovery that their 6-room bungalow was on fire. Hamady was overcome by smoke and was burned and slightly injured when he fell down the cellar steps. Neighbors rescued the imperiled family.

Firemen extinguished the flames with an estimated loss of $1,500.

In Ambridge a duplex owned by James McKee, a former burgess, and occupied by McKee and G. I. Wanamaker, at 520 Park road was damaged $8,000, according to Chief A. G. Fisher, when fire started in the basement of the dwelling last night. Ambridge firemen fought the fire more than three hours before it was extinguished.

Damage estimated at $500 resulted from a fire early last night in the offices of the Penn Table Mat Company, on the sixth floor of a building at 928 Penn avenue.

Traffic in Penn avenue was halted when firemen were forced to use an 85-foot extension ladder to gain entrance to the plant. Battalion Chief George Sparr, who estimated the loss, believed the blaze was caused by a small electric heater.

Mrs. Henkel

Mrs. Henkel was prepared to go to bed for the night, Coroner Edward C. James S. Matgarret and John White, police said, when a concentrated gas in the cellar exploded, causing the kitchen floor to give way. Mrs. Henkel, who rented her home, said:

"I did not hear any explosion. The concussion caused me to lose consciousness. When I regained my senses I found myself suspended from a rafter in the basement."

Mrs. John Mooney, 50, an invalid, occupying the second floor of a three-family house at 1001 Oak avenue, was carried to the home of a neighbor. The house was owned by John Welch, who occupies the third floor. The first floor was unoccupied. A residence in 1005 Oak avenue was occupied by H. A. Ripple.

Chief E. D. Kenyon of Turtle Creek estimated the damage to the three homes at $20,000. Two fire alarms were sounded and firemen worked several hours before the flames were extinguished.

FAMILY RESCUED

Cries of their five children, ranging from a babe in arms to 13 years, aroused Matthew Hamady and his wife of 1724 Taylor street, Aliquippa, at 2:15 a.m. today, and led to the discovery that their 6-room bungalow was on fire. Hamady was overcome by smoke and was burned and slightly injured when he fell down the cellar steps. Neighbors rescued the imperiled family.

MUST FURNISH BOND

The guards must furnish a $2,000 surety bond for the faithful performance of their duties and they are required to take an oath to support the laws of the United States and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The bill does not permit the guards to carry weapons other than firearms or other weapons except on the property of the employers and while guarding patrols in transit or patrolling electric power transmission lines.

Persons injured or damaged by reason of violation of the provisions of the guards bonds can sue in the name of the Commonwealth.

The salaries of the guards would be paid by the employers. No provision is made for the amount of compensation.

The attorney general is empowered to revoke the appointments at his pleasure. Appointments are to be recorded in the recorder of deeds office of the county where the guards are employed.

Mourning Husband Seeks Missing Wife at Morgue

He is a tall man with a haggard face and dazed eyes. Ever day since the disappearance of his wife two weeks ago he enters the morgue with the slow, hesitating tread of a man ago-nized. Fearfully he peers at the bodies, hoping and praying that his wife is not among them.

Two weeks ago Eschrich found this note:

"Dear Jack:

"I will be in the river by now.

Eschrich says their home life has always been ideal; that there have been no quarrels. Three months ago his wife's father died. Last month her mother died. She had been melancholy and brooding after that.

WOMAN JAILED, DROPS APPEAL

The appeal of Mrs. Helen Hess, of Uniontown, to the United States Court of Appeals, from her conviction and sentence in the Federal District Court for violating the Mann act, will be discontinued, according to her attorney, James P. O'Connor.

The latter said Mrs. Hess, who is in jail in default of $5,000 bond pending removal to a government institution to serve one year, is unable to finance costs of appeal and a bond pending the hearing.

WARN ONE-LIGHT AUTO DRIVERS

Magistrate William J. Soost reprimanded 91 persons in Traffic Court today. They were summoned for driving with one headlight or no taillight. Soost told them to be more careful in the future.

He has no quarrel with Inspector Jacob Dorsey, who ordered the drive against one-eyed cars, the magistrate said. Yesterday he had announced that he would discharge persons brought in for first offenses. He explained:

"It wouldn't hurt the police to show a little courtesy to drivers. They should, at least, give them a chance to replace bad bulbs. It has always been my rule, since I have been in this office, to work in harmony with Mr. Dorsey and Mr. McIntyre, but I'd rather discharge nine guilty violators than fine one innocent person."

Dorsey announced he would continue to make arrests.

SHEPPARD SEES PERIL IN DRY REPEAL

Prohibition Saves 200,000 Annually, 'Father' of Law Says on 11th Anniversary

International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Prohibition has saved 200,000 lives annually during the 11 years the Eighteenth Amendment has been a part of the Constitution, and no greater disaster could befall the nation than its repeal, declared Senator Morris Sheppard, Dem., of Texas, in a speech in the Senate today observing the eleventh anniversary of promulgation of the dry amendment.

The "father of the dry law" asserted:

"The principal foundation on which prohibition rests today is the voluntary obedience of the great mass of the American people."

Sheppard declared the liquor traffic "a source of the human race's greatest curse" to mankind.

Sheppard declared prohibition had caused an increase in crime and cited statistics to support his denial.

Declaring the nation must be altogether dry or altogether wet, Sheppard declared there was no possibility of a compromise and predicted the prohibition amendment would never be repealed.

Meanwhile there was expectancy today among leaders of both the dry and anti-dry forces concerning the imminent prohibition report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission. From both camps have come expressed hopes that the long-awaited document will bolster their contentions.

CLARA BOW OUT OF NEW FILM

Miss Sidney will co-star with Gary Cooper.

Whether this means the flaming haired screen flapper's career has ended was a matter of conjecture in Hollywood, but the dropping of Miss Bow from the cast of her next scheduled picture recalled vividly Miss DeVoe's testimony:

"One more slam and Clara is through in pictures."

Reports that the "It" girl would marry Rex Bell, screen cowboy, her new boy friend, were current.

Miss DeVoe, attorney announced he would summon Miss Bow and Bell as defense witnesses when Miss DeVoe takes the witness stand today in her own defense.

Miss DeVoe has promised to "tell everything about Clara's love affairs."

MRS. MILLER RAPS DRY LAW

Prohibition is class legislation and is responsible for many social evils, in the opinion of Mrs. Carroll Miller, vice chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, who spoke on "Prohibition in Our Public Life" at a tea at Phillips Hall, Butler road, yesterday afternoon.

Nearly 250 women from Butler and Butler County were present. Following a public reform an organization meeting was held to form a Butler County chapter.

DENIES IT IS TEMPERANCE

Mrs. Miller scored the church for mixing in politics and denounced lawmakers who are anti-dry in sentiment but vote dry "as a matter of expediency." She said:

"Prohibition is not temperance. Christ didn't preach prohibition, but freedom, understanding, self-control. Prohibition is a failure, because it is contrary to human intelligence and psychology. It has caused corruption, hypocrisy and crime. The thing that will destroy a nation sooner than anything else is class legislation. Prohibition is vicious class legislation."

Mrs. Charles H. Sabin, of New York, national president, and Mrs. Graham Dougherty, of Philadelphia, will be the principal speakers at a luncheon and meeting of the organization next Tuesday in the William Penn Hotel.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Life's long voyage ended here for Capt. B. Whitford Joy at the age of 71. In life he knew every ocean lane, and was one of the few men who held master mariner's papers, permitting him to navigate all the water of the globe in both sail boats and steam ships.

CITY TO END RELIEF FOR JOBLESS

Second $100,000 Fund Gone; 48,750 Given Aid; 70 New Cases Make Appeal Daily

All unemployment relief by the City of Pittsburgh ceases tomorrow.

The second $100,000 appropriation by Council is exhausted, and no definite arrangements have been made for additional funds.

According to Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of public welfare, 9,750 families have received aid from the city since the first appropriation. She estimated that 48,750 persons have been given aid, an average of five to each family. All families aided have been investigated and found deserving of help.

About $3,000 a day has been expended to care for the deserving cases.

70 CASES DAILY

Seventy new cases are being listed for investigation every day.

City Controller James P. Kerr today notified Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Department of Public Welfare, that with the liquidation of the second council manic grant, relief work by the city must cease. He wrote:

"Relief work by the city will be discontinued January 17. All bills must be in my hands by Monday noon."

When asked if she thought city relief should be continued Mrs. Rauh said:

"Absolutely! The necessity is self evident. Money must be provided!"

She pointed out that within the last three days 202 families had applied for help.

"It is a matter for conjecture whether we can aid them now that the city has ordered relief halted."

Mrs. Rauh said Mayor Kline, President of Council John S. Herron and Dr. James P. Kerr and herself had conferred on the subject yesterday.

MEETINGS DISCUSSED

Welfare organizations have not arranged a meeting with Council to discuss the situation as yet. They were perfecting plans today for such a meeting shortly, however.

Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the welfare fund, said:

"Unless Council makes another appropriation unemployment relief cannot be maintained. Welfare organizations haven't enough funds to continue the work in the scope required. I will urge Council by all means to continue relief by the city."

OIL PRODUCERS ATTACK MELLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon was attacked today at the conference of independent oil producers.

Tom F. Cranfill, of Dallas, said the Cabinet member was the guiding spirit of the Gulf Oil Company. Extensive imports by that company were largely responsible for the plight of the industry, he continued, asserting:

"Pull off the false whiskers of the Gulf company and you will find the face of Uncle Andy Mellon."

He charged the Gulf company with an effort to drive Texas independent producers out of business by establishing a distributing system of their own.

Wilson Classmate, Eye Specialist, Dies

BALTIMORE, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Dr. Hiram Woods, one of the pioneers in the field of ophthalmology, and a nationally known eye surgeon, was dead at his home here today, a victim of pneumonia, by which he was stricken last week.

The death of Dr. Woods cut to three the surviving members of the Princeton University graduating class of 1879, which numbered President Wilson as one of its eight members.

Boy, Five Girls Die Under Ice

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A youth and six girls from 11 to 25 years old were drowned in the swift waters of the Exploits River when a sled on which they were driving broke through the ice at Point of Bay.

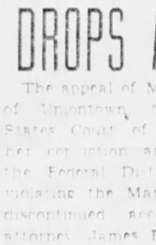
Prohibition Leaders Mark 11 Years' Gains

Prohibition still holds its place as a noble and successful experiment, in the opinion of its adherents. On the eleventh anniversary of the dry law, many prominent Pittsburgh churchmen and religious workers believe conditions are becoming better every year.

The placing of enforcement activities under the Department of Justice is hailed as a milestone in the progress of anti-liquor activities. Many of the prohibition leaders believe that if state and local authorities will act in support of the federal government the dry law will soon be administered with great efficiency.

Opinions of some of the prominent prohibition leaders in the Pittsburgh district follow:

MRS. ELIZABETH J. GIBSON, president of Allegheny County Division, Women's Christian Temperance Union—We believe that with enforcement in the hands of the Department of Justice the prohibition law will be administered in a much better manner. It will take education, however, and we are helping to supply that. Alcohol is a narcotic poison, and those devoted to our cause worked for more than 100 years in securing the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act. Those statistics have taken the government out of partnership with the liquor traffic, and in spite of all that has been said by critics of prohibition, it has decreased the number of drunken men on the streets.



Mrs. Gibson

THE REV. J. W. CLAUDY, executive secretary, Council of Churches—Prohibition has been getting better enforcement each year. Right now it is in the best condition in which it has been during the 11 years of its existence. There is a better caliber of men among the enforcement officers and they are getting results. The transfer of prohibition control to the Department of Justice has undoubtedly helped. What is needed most of all now as a practical aid to prohibition is the full co-operation of state and local authorities with the federal government. The law is on the statute books and should be firmly supported by all officials.

Dr. Claudy

THE REV. DR. D. F. CRUEA, Anti-Saloon League—Prohibition is no longer an experiment in the United States. From whatever angle we view this question it has passed beyond the testing point and demonstrated its value. This is attested equally in the fields of economics, of health and of sociology. Assailed as no other public policy ever has been assailed, it has weathered storms which would have sufficed to overthrow a measure that was less strongly established or that did not have behind it a tremendous volume of public sentiment.

Prohibition has done more than meet the expectations of those who, for long years prior to the submission of the Eighteenth Amendment labored in its behalf. It has exceeded those expectations.

Dr. Cruea

If the American people would stand by President Hoover in his efforts to enforce prohibition, and if the metropolitan press were inclined to be half way fair on this question within a very short time the Eighteenth Amendment would be enforced.

JOHN W. VICKERMAN, president Pennsylvania State Federation, Adult Bible Classes—Prohibition poorly enforced as it has been for 11 years has done more to raise the standard of living of the working classes than any one thing in national life. The old corner saloon was a curse to the working man and his family. Children no longer go to school without shoes. Social workers all agree that conditions under prohibition are better than under the old saloon.

Mr. Vickerman

When prohibition first went into effect the wets made much ado about taking the poor man's beer away from him but you no longer hear any complaint from that source. The cry now comes from the idle rich whose pre-war stock has been used up.

Only men who thoroughly believe in prohibition should be appointed as enforcing officers. Judges should give jail sentences for breaking the law, not small fines or paroles. City and county officials must help the state and federal authorities in enforcing the law.

MRS. ELLA M. GEORGE, State President, Women's Christian Temperance Union—After 11 years of trial, my opinion is that prohibition is a noble and successful experiment. During that period, in traveling through Pennsylvania, I have seen only one drunken man on a railroad train. This is in contrast to an experience I had before prohibition when I was in charge of a group of women returning from a gathering at Denver. Groups of men under the influence of liquor passed through the car, and the porter cautioned us not to attract attention as there might be trouble. On the streets of the city, I have only seen three drunks in 11 years. The improvement of conditions in homes and in schools is particularly noticeable. My plan is for rigid enforcement.

Mrs. George

THE REV. DR. ROBERT MacGOWAN, Pastor Bellefield Presbyterian Church—In the country districts prohibition has proved comparatively successful. In the cities it is more of a problem. The only solution is a temperate people. This comes by education.

Rum Sales to Uniontown Students Probed

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 16.—Liquor is being sold to pupils between the ages of 12 and 14 in the Central School of Uniontown.

This became known today when District Attorney J. B. Adams admitted that teachers had reported intoxication of several boys and at least one girl. They came to their classes in a rather dazed condition and when the matter was reported to the authorities, the youths are said to have given the description of the man from whom they purchased liquor.

The full force of the district attorney's office has been thrown into the probe to determine the source of the liquor supply among the school children.

OIL COMPANY IN RECEIVERSHIP

The Butler County Oil Refining Company is in the hands of receivers.

The company, dealing in oil refining and petroleum products, has plants in nine cities in Pennsylvania. Its assets exceed $1,097,000.

R. H. McClestin, of Butler, and Joseph A. Beck, of Pittsburgh, were appointed receivers in an equity suit in Federal Court by Ida E. Litzinger, of Butler, this morning.

Judge R. M. Gibson ordered bond of $75,000. The plaintiff alleged an indebtedness to her of $35,729.86, and charged the company had failed to pay current salaries.

The company admitted it could not meet obligations as they matured and joined the plaintiff in asking for the receivership.

The company has plants at Bruin, Beaver County; Pittsburgh, Lemont, Center County; Beavertown, Snyder County; Sunbury and Milton, Northumberland County; Berwyn, Chester County, and Bridgeport, Montgomery County.

Coolidge Deplores Heavy Armament Sentiment

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 16.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The contemplated cost for naval expansion under the first year program for bringing our fleet up to the London limitation treaty standard exceeds one hundred and twenty-six million dollars. This is only a small beginning, but there does not seem to be any escape from paying it.

Grey, of Fallodon, tells us of the error he believes Germany made before the war when England proposed a naval holiday. He was not in office at the time of the Geneva nor the London conference. Had the British government applied his reasoning to the situation existing at those conferences a very large sum would be saved to taxpayers of both countries. We know that the British navy is not built against us. We know they have no reason to think our Navy is built against them or any other nation. We can afford to pay a large price to end competition. That is a consolation. But when European people are in distress it is difficult to understand why they insist on large armaments or why those who are most distressed and seem most secure complain the most because their armaments are limited. They ought to rejoice in a new-found freedom.

The 1931 Automobile Show will open at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Formal opening will be held at 8:30 p. m., with president of City Council, John Herron, making the opening address over Radio Station WCAE. He will be introduced by C. A. Rehtmeyer, president of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association.

The largest group of motor cars ever to be shown in Pittsburgh will be on display from 1 p. m. to 11 p. m. daily, except Sunday, until January 24, according to W. N. Owings, secretary of the Pittsburgh Automobile Dealers' Association.

Many innovations and improvements over former models are to be on exhibition. Two 16-cylinder autos, one 12-cylinder make, a number with the new popular freewheeling transmission principle, a series of radically changed bodies will be seen.

New attention to beauty marks the exhibit this year. A general adoption of air craft design principles will be seen. Longer wheelbases and greater passenger room are a marked feature of 1931 automobiles.

GROCERY STORE SURVEY LIKELY

A governmental survey or at least assistance in the conducting of a study of the retail grocery field in Pittsburgh, similar to the Department of Commerce survey in Louisville, has been assured C. A. Kolb, president of the Pittsburgh Association of Manufacturers Representatives, announced today.

Support of legislation to provide an appropriation was promised by Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis, it was stated by Kolb at the association's weekly luncheon in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Mr. Kolb returned from Washington today after conferring with the Commerce Department officials and the two senators.

Describing the benefits derived by Louisville in helping reduce waste in the food business and increased efficiency of the independent grocer, Mr. Kolb stated the survey made in 1929 showed a total of 15 bankruptcies that year, while last year the failures were reduced to three.

PUPILS BITTEN BY POLICE DOGS

Three girls hurrying to East Street School were bitten by two police dogs in Brahm street, North Side, today. A fourth, Alice Rossmiller, 13, of 150 Brahm street, escaped injury by kicking the dog that lunged at her. Three other girls in the group were not attacked.

Alice's sister, Eleanor, 10, was bitten on the arm, leg and hip. Clara Rostetter, 10, and her sister, Anna, 9, of 144 Brahm street, were bitten on the legs.

The dogs were chased away by a woman who stoned them. A half block away one of the animals attacked Edwin Volz, 8, but was unable to sink its teeth through his leather coat.

An hour later the dogs were captured in Spring Garden avenue. They were taken by the Animal Rescue League.

Their owner, Domenico Rocca, shoemaker at 1506 East street, said somebody had removed a board from the fence in his yard, which allowed the dogs their liberty.

The girls were treated for their wounds and were able to return to school.

ARMOUR CHIEF DIES IN FALL

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—The seven-floor plunge which brought death to F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., today was blamed on a fainting attack such as he had suffered previously. He was 58 years old.

White was killed when he plunged from the seventh floor bedroom window of his apartment last night. He had been chatting with his wife, her sister and a business associate, who had just left his bedroom.

Philip L. Reed, of New York, treasurer of the company, who had been with White only a moment before, described a fainting spell which White had had 24 hours before.

White had risen from a cattle driver in a Peoria (Ill.) slaughter house to chief executive of one of the largest packing concerns in the world.

SARNIA, Ont., Jan. 16.—(AP.)—Discovery on Walpole Island of what are believed to be the bones of Tecumseh, famous Indian chief and ally of the British forces in the War of 1812, was reported today by members of the Walpole Island Soldier's Club. The find was made a week ago at the residence of Sarah White, 85-year-old widow of a former chief, but the information was withheld pending partial authentication, which the members of the club now believe they have.

J. I. BUCHANAN ESTATE SMALL

In the absence of a will, letters of administration were issued to the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company today to dispose of the estate of James Isaac Buchanan, active figure in a score of business and civic bodies, who died two weeks ago from a fall on an icy pavement.

The $5,000 bond that the trust company was required to post indicates that the estate is small and that Mr. Buchanan had disposed of most of his assets prior to his death.

At the time of his death, Mr. Buchanan was president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Warehouse, Washington Oil Company and the Tarrytown Natural Gas Company. He had served as director of the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company, vice president of the Manufacturers Light and Heat Company and director of the Natural Gas Company of West Virginia and the Terminal Trust Company. He was one of the world's most prominent Masons.

It was the second attack on Mrs. Howard since she appeared as a "mystery witness" against the millionaire and his former employe.

After yesterday's attack Mrs. Howard was found by neighbors who had heard her screams. She had been stabbed twice above the heart, slashed across the face and beaten on the head. She was reported in a critical condition.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure that caused the cold weather over the country the past several days is now located over the Southeast. It caused a further drop in temperature over the Carolinas and Virginia, while the resulting southerly winds have caused a marked rise in temperature over the entire central portion of the country and northward over the Upper Mississippi Valley states, over the Rocky Mountain states and northward over Alberta it is somewhat colder than yesterday. The Northwest low is now centered over Western Ontario, but with little cloudiness and no precipitation. The Southwest disturbance is advancing eastward, resulting in rain over Texas and Oklahoma.

River Conditions.

The upper rivers are frozen. Stage at Pittsburgh is 10.1 feet. Dam No. 4, 9.9; Dam No. 6, 7.8, and Dam No. 13, 6.1. The rivers will change but little.

PERSHING PLEADS FOR SHIPS

LLOYD GEORGE DOUBTFUL OF AID

Gives Little Encouragement For Transportation of U. S. Troops; Hailed in France

assistance to bring over our troops he did not seem to be particularly interested, and gave little hope that the British would be able to furnish us any shipping whatever.

In the evening a State dinner was given at Somerset House to the senior members of our party. It was official without being either stiff or formal, and was intended not only as a social welcome tendered us by about 20 of the leading officials of the government, but as a gathering for friendly discussion. The British, of course, wanted to show their satisfaction that we were in the war, although I fear they were building too high their hopes of early American aid.

Mr. Lloyd George, who presided, was in excellent humor and frequently joked with his confreres at his own and other tables. Lord Curzon was late and the Prime Minister said this was no doubt due to the fact that he had lately taken a young American wife.

Under the surface of the seeming cheerfulness there was more than a suggestion of serious apprehension. U-boat activities were spoken of almost in whispers. At the dinner we were again told of the total losses, which, including April, had reached 3,000,000 tons, and during April and May amounted to 1,500,000 tons. It was an appalling increase.

From a rough calculation, it was easy to believe that if the destruction of British shipping continued at that rate there would soon be none left either to help transport an American army to Europe or to supply it after arrival.

Under the circumstances the apparent unconcern of the British as to our need of shipping is not difficult to understand. They were seriously alarmed regarding their own food situation. It seemed to me, however, that they had allowed their pessimism to carry them too far in the direction of hopelessness. At the moment, they could see no relief for the future and no prospect of aiding us in tonnage.

After leave-taking calls and numerous informal visits, conferring with various leaders and making one trip to a training camp, our party left June 13 for Folkestone and France. At Boulogne we again received an impressive welcome, and a few hours later we were in Paris.

Joyous Reception

French Enthused When Americans Arrive

The officials who met us at the station included M. Paul Painleve, Minister of War, Marshal Joseph Joffre, Rene Viviani, Maj.Gen. Foch, then chief of staff, and U. S. Ambassador William G. Sharp. There were many others. The station was packed and the atmosphere seemed electrified with pent-up enthusiasm.

M. Painleve.

Outside dense masses lined the boulevards and filled the squares along the route to our hotel, the Crillon. Cheers and tears mingled as men and women shouted acclaim. Women climbed into our carriages screaming "Vive l' Amerique," and threw flowers until we were buried.

It was said that never before in the history of Paris had there been such an outpouring of people. I was to see its parallel when the Armistice was signed and on two other occasions, once when President Wilson arrived and later when the Victory Parade took place July 14, 1919.

Although I was very anxious to get to work, it was necessary for me to make certain official calls and attend a few entertainments that had been planned for us. The French suggested that we should first go to visit Napoleon's tomb in Les Invalides.

Martial Spirit

Pershing Impressed by Incident in Tomb

We were taken down to the crypt, where I was handed the great key and was asked to unlock the heavy wrought iron entrance door. We were shown uniforms and the baton that belonged to Napoleon and then his sword. Our veteran escort reverently removed the sword from the case and offered it to me as if to transmit some of the genius of the great captain. So much of French sentiment and tradition is associated with this tomb and its treasures that everyone who visits there with Frenchmen must share their feelings of profound emotion. This incident, more than any other connected with my reception, impressed me with the martial spirit of the French people.

I called next to pay my respects to President Poincare and to present greetings from President Wilson.

"The French people are very happy," he said, "that America is in the war. Your coming is a great satisfaction to us."

He inquired generally about our plans, seeking, as they all did, some assurance that we should soon be in the trenches. His attitude was rather formal and reserved, but he at once impressed me as a man of ability and force.

The President and Madame Poincare invited me and several members of the staff to the Elysee Palace to luncheon, which was delightful in every particular. Nowhere are such things done as well as in Paris at the palace of the President. The plate, the silver, the linen are models of taste, while the menu and service find no parallel elsewhere. M. and Mme. Poincare both understand English thoroughly and she speaks it perfectly.

Aerial Defense

French Aviation Far Superior to Ours

In the afternoon I visited the Chamber of Deputies in company with our ambassador and heard a speech by M. Viviani in which he referred with much feeling to his reception in the United States, and mentioned his having been privileged to deliver an address before Congress. His eloquence over America's entrance into the war and what it meant to France caused prolonged cheering and an enthusiastic recognition of our presence by the deputies.

Later on several of us went to the aviation field at Le Bourget, where we saw numbers of airplanes always held in readiness to take the air against raids by enemy planes and Zeppelins. The defense system also included the latest development in anti-aircraft guns, both at Le Bourget and in the suburbs. The exhibition of aerial and ground personnel and maneuvers left us with the painful thought that our aviation had a long way to go to attain similar efficiency.

I called on the Minister of Marine, M. Lacaze, who dwelt on the gravity of the losses by submarines and the consequent menace of food shortage. France was actually dependent for her food supply upon some 1,300,000 tons of British shipping that had been allotted to her use. Although the minister contended that the food situation was becoming serious, the British held that the French government failed to limit the consumption of food by the people to the same extent they did.

Likeable Fellow

Favorably Impressed by Gen. Petain

A visit to French general headquarters at Compiegne was made, primarily to meet Gen. Petain and the officers of his staff. Petain is above medium height and weight. He wore a full mustache, slightly gray, and was then about 60. He has a kindly expression and is most agreeable, but not especially talkative.

His keen sense of humor became apparent from the jokes he told at the expense of some of his staff. Our conversation after luncheon was almost entirely on military affairs, including America's probable part in the war, which, as matters stood, gave little promise of becoming effective until the following spring.

My impression of Petain was favorable and it remained unchanged throughout the war. Our friendship, which I highly treasure, had its beginning at this meeting. Complete co-operation is difficult even under the most favorable conditions, and is rarely attained between men or peoples of different nationalities, but it seemed probable that Petain's breadth of vision, his common sense and his sound judgment would make for understanding, and this proved to be true on many occasions later on.

Near Danger Zone

Visits Territory Near the Front Lines

At the luncheon there were several general officers, among whom was Maj. Gen. Franchet d'Esperey, then in command of a group of armies under Petain. He was considered one of the ablest and most aggressive officers in the French army, and was very popular with his men.

As we wished to get a glimpse of the actual front, he took us by motor as near as possible without drawing the fire of the enemy's artillery, although at that time there was little activity on that part of the front. The point of observation that we reached was opposite Saint Quentin, which was then within the enemy's lines, and which was later near the center of the great German drive of 1918 against the British.

On the return trip the chauffeur, after being cautioned several times, continued to drive at a somewhat dangerous speed, which so exasperated the General that he finally threatened the chauffeur with violence, whereupon the speed was greatly reduced.

BUSINESS MEN BACK JEWISH RELIEF FUND

Hundreds Need Assistance, Chairman of Federation's $450,000 Appeal Asserts

Fifty business and professional men at a luncheon in the William Penn Hotel pledged themselves to aid the drive of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies for $450,000 to further work of the 17 agencies under the federation. Speakers were Alfred M. Oppenheimer, general chairman of the campaign; Edgar J. Kaufmann, Irvin F. Lehman and Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson.

The speakers were united in their declaration that Pittsburgh has suffered less from the present business depression than the average city in the country, but emphasized the need of relief activities. Oppenheimer said:

"There never has been a time of financial disturbance which has not involved a certain amount of stress and misfortune. We are compelled to face the fact that hundreds of our people need help."

FORMER DONORS IN NEED

Lehman said many men and women who formerly supported the federation are now in need of assistance.

Tracing the activities of the federation since it was formed, Kaufmann declared:

"As business men if we assume the federation idea to be sound, and if we assume it to be well managed, we have got to share the responsibility for financing the work. The fact that a deficit has accumulated since the 1925 campaign is not important to us who know the job that has been done. The only reason the deficit exists is because the federation's cause has been pushed aside repeatedly because of other appeals."

TRIBUTE TO STRAUS

Dr. Goldenson spoke of the philanthropy of Nathan Straus, who died several days ago in New York. In closing his address on the campaign he said:

We had prosperity a year and half ago. Since then we have had great reversals, great changes. Let us leave this text as a parting thought. It is taken from Ecclesiastics: 'In the day of prosperity, be joyful; in adversity, consider.'"

POLICE SEIZE SUSPECT, STILL PLAN MAGAZINE CASE APPEAL

Paving a surprise raid to the home of Anthony Powolino, at 1021 Ogilvie street, early today, police according to their report, seized a 100-gallon still, a quantity of mash and moonshine. They arrested Powolino on a charge of violating the Snyder act.

The city police had called Powolino home at the request of the Sharpsburg police, who sought to question Powolino in connection with an attempt to rob a Sharpsburg garage. The borough police say two men fled from the garage in a truck. The license of the truck, police say, had been issued to Powolino.

Officials of the Izaak Walton League of America announced that the organization had decided to appeal to the Supreme Court the decision of Magistrate Robinson, who fined Raymond Wright $500 and costs on each of two charges of violating the Volstead act. The case will be the first appeal to the Supreme Court on the question of the constitutionality of the Jones-Stalker law, which provides for the confiscation of automobiles used in transporting liquor. Wright was arrested by agents of the Pittsburgh police department.

Chief Who Missed But One Big Fire Retired at 82

CLEVELAND, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The country's dean of fire chiefs has relinquished active command.

George A. Wallace, 82, who in his 62 years with the Cleveland fire department missed only one big blaze, and was off duty only 13 days because of illness, handed his resignation to Safety Director Edwin Barry.

The oldest active fire chief in the country, who was famous for his ardor to be always in the midst of the thickest fight, became emeritus and will live in Engine House Number 14, where he has made his residence since his wife died in 1921, so he may be close at hand when the sirens hoot.

$140,000 DRIVE BEGUN BY Y. W.

Five hundred women last night attended a dinner meeting in the Central branch of the Y. W. C. A., Chatham street, which officially opened the annual budget drive for $140,000. The Rev. Dr. William R. Most of the women present are volunteer workers in the annual appeal which will be carried into more than 6,000 homes here during the next 10 days. Miss Mabel Lindsay Gillespie, general chairman of the campaign executive committee, presided. Miss Esther M. Hawes, metropolitan general secretary, was one of the speakers.

The annual meeting resulted in the selection of the following as members of the board:

COURT ORDERS FOREST BOUGHT

Under a court order signed by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, the government will acquire 16,276 acres of land in Warren and Forest counties, for forestation, to protect the upper Allegheny River watershed. In the tract is 100 acres of virgin white pine which the government will use for experimental purposes.

Condemnation proceedings against the land were begun six months ago by Assistant United States Attorney W. J. Aiken. Upon payment of $171,594.12 to the owners, the land will be turned over to the Department of Agriculture. The court order sets forth that the outstanding mineral, oil and gas rights are to be retained by the owners.

A large portion of the land has been owned by the Dusenbury and Wheeler families for more than a century.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—Special honors were bestowed today on Gen. Italo Balbo and the intrepid fliers who braved death over jungle and ocean to fly 11 Italian seaplanes over 6,000 miles to Rio de Janeiro from Orbetello, Italy.

The government of Brazil will purchase the oceanic machines for $60,000 each, but hundreds of sacks of coffee instead of money will go to Italy to pay the bill.

The young air minister, following lavish functions in his honor last night, was scheduled to pay his respects to President Vargas at the palace during the day, where the status of special ambassador will be accorded him. The airmen will return home by steamer.

J. Fred Lissfelt

The Denishawn Dancers, led by Ted Shawn and Ernestine Day, attracted a large audience to the Nixon Theater last night, and entertained generously with a new and varied program. Pursuing their ideals for perpetuating racial ceremonies and dances, for interpreting music, and for creating new designs in strictly rhythmic forms, they were in some instances far ahead of any former performances.

Ted Shawn is doubtless among the greatest dancers of our day. Originally interested in the pictorial, in the plastic, he soon investigated and idealized both mystic and popular dances of the Orient and Europe. Now he has entered the sphere of pathology on his way to higher regions of thought and in the "Divine Idiot" is on the brink of successfully projecting his thesis. Shawn's divine body and intensity of emotional force coupled with an artistic restraint that never permits an exaggeration, make his dancing a mighty stimulant to any imagination.

The American Negro dances are not without humor, while his American Indian is a thrilling reminder of a civilization which we have killed. Unforgettable is his Whirling Dervish, which, with the Bavarian peasant dance, could have been grotesque, had not Shawn's fine taste kept them both within the lines of pure dancing. The climax to his program, however, was the Spanish suite, suave, graceful, masculine, insinuating Spanish even to the set of his jaw.

Ernestine Day suggests much that was of Ruth St. Denis. Her hands and that delicate hesitation in step is beautifully perpetuated in her interpretations of Debussy and Prokofieff, for which she feels an amazingly true spirit. Her Indian Drum Dance was her finest achievement, though she was an excellent second to Shawn in the Spanish group.

Campbell Griggs and Jack Dole had a very effective East Indian Camel Boys' Dance. Their technique is outstanding, and they were excellent pivots for the ensembles. Foremost among the offerings of the company must be mentioned the satiric Piece Froid of Erik Satie and the machine-like Rover, not forgetting the rhythmic gestures to the accompaniment of percussion instruments. This year's company was somewhat limited, and the absence of orchestra did not enhance the usual glamor of the scenes. Mary Campbell was an indefatigable pianist.

Freed in Still Case; Jailed for Drinking

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 16.—(AP.)—Acquitted on a charge of possessing a still, W. I. Hackworth, a farmer, was in jail today on the accusation of taking a drink in the Federal Building while on trial.

Waiting in the prisoner's dock of the marshal's office yesterday for the jury to return its verdict in the still case, Hackworth drew a flask from his pocket, according to Prohibition Chief Carroll Cate, and imbibed deeply.

Fairbanks-Pickford Radio Talk Record

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—A new record for the longest radio-wire circuit in ship-to-shore conversation was held today by Mary Pickford and her husband, Douglas Fairbanks.

The actor, aboard the liner Belgenland four days out of Honolulu sailing west, talked to Miss Pickford in her hotel here late yesterday. The distance covered by combined radio and wire circuits was about 7,000 miles.

18-Year Whipping Of Wife Stopped

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(AP.)—Mrs. William McKechnie, of Gaven, told a magistrate that she had been whipped by her husband every day for the past 18 years and was growing tired of the procedure. Magistrate Campbell, doing a lightning calculation, figured she had been thrashed about 6,570 times, placed William on probation for 12 months, promising a jail sentence if he used his razor strop on his wife again.

Fourth of Padlock Cases Tried in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—More than 1,740 padlock cases, or almost one-fourth of the total number of such prohibition cases tried in the United States in 1930, were disposed of in New York, a statement of the office of the United States attorney revealed today. Virtually all of the trials resulted in decisions in favor of the government, the statement said.

Girl's Strangler Hunted in Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(INS.)—Squads of police today were conducting a city-wide hunt for the youth who waylaid Miss Eppie P. Moss, 41, in a small garage and strangled her to death.

An accurate description of the killer was furnished by three friends who were attempting to force the garage doors with crow bars when the slayer, about 20, dived through a small window and fled.

The improvements are to include addition of four traffic policemen, an emergency fire truck, carbon monoxide machines, improved lighting, signs and signals and pamphlets and publicity.

"Buzzer" Used As Aid in Fishing

ESCANABA, Mich., Jan. 16.—(AP.)—Mayor W. H. Needham, of Escanaba, is an ultra-modern fisherman, and his fishing shack on the ice of Bay De Noc is fitted with all sorts of new fangled appliances, electrical and otherwise. Three friends were sitting with the mayor in his shack enjoying a game of hearts, when a buzzer sounded. The mayor said:

"Aha, a bite."

He pulled up a line attached to an electric buzzer, powered by the battery which lights and heats the shack. A good-sized fish was on the hook.

The mayor runs the electrical store here.

Youth Seized Taking Poultry Show Bird

When the lights were flashed on a Yellow Jacobin cock valued at $1,000 was missing. Attendants noticed a youth walking away hastily. A search disclosed the missing bird beneath his coat.

AUTO OUTLOOK FOR '31 HELD BRIGHT

Oakland-Pontiac Agents Told Volume Will Reach $100,000,000 in U. S.

Confidence in the prospects for $100,000,000 automobile business during 1931 was brought to Pittsburgh today for the annual sales convention of Oakland-Pontiac dealers, the fifth in a series of 23 such gatherings from coast to coast. W. A. Blees, vice president in charge of sales for the Oakland Motor Car Company, sounded the keynote of optimism for the coming year before a gathering of 450 dealers who came from a district marked by Ashland, Ky., south; Portsmouth, O., west; Titusville, Pa., north, and Mt. Union, Pa., east.

Mr. Blees

Blees, who resigned a year ago as president of the Motor Accounting Company to assume responsibility for the direction of Oakland-Pontiac sales, arrived here last night. The convention of dealers was held in the Fort Pitt Hotel this afternoon. A banquet tonight will close the meeting.

STAR SALESMEN MEET

Meeting with the dealers are the star salesmen of the district, all members of the "52-Car Club;" the zone office staff and representatives; various other individuals from other General Motors units, the heads of Pittsburgh's weekly luncheon club organizations and a selected group of students and faculty representatives from Duquesne University, Carnegie Institute of Technology and the University of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Bathrick

The executive staff assisting Blees with the convention program included D. U. Bathrick, eastern sales manager; P. Wesley Combs, advertising manager; W. R. Huber, sales promotion manager; A. C. S. Olson, dealer accounting manager; J. S. O'Rourke, parts and service manager, and H. H. Goodrich, of the sales department, in charge of arrangements for the meeting. J. S. Calhoun, Pittsburgh zone manager, and his staff are serving as hosts to the visiting officials and dealers.

Mr. Combs

SHOWS HINT BOOM

Blees bases his anticipation for increased business and a prosperous 1931 on the public mental attitude as reflected at the recent automobile shows and such business factors as more economical overhead and the absolute necessity of motor car replacement which, he says, cannot hold over longer than spring.

Asserting the depression has benefited business, Blees predicted the industry will gain 10 to 15 per cent more business this year and follow with all records being broken during 1932. Speaking before the representatives, he said:

ON UP TREND

"The depression has produced gains from the manufacturers straight through to the motorist. The manufacturer was compelled to study his business more thoroughly and thereby overcome waste investments that have been spent in producing better cars. The weak dealers who were unable to stand up under the strain had to go out of business. There remain among the dealers only those who can merchandise and give service to the benefit of the customer. And the latter today is getting the greatest car value ever offered.

"There is no question but that the automobile industry is on the up trend. The increase will be slow probably until spring, but then the sales will be produced."

ON NATIONAL TOUR

Blees and his staff are making a three-month tour of the country, holding sales conventions with dealers and their banker associates in 23 leading business centers from coast-to-coast.

Every matter that pertains to the successful operation of a retail automobile business from advertising to service were discussed at today's meetings. Talking pictures, charts, together with various devices of the theater were employed to illustrate and dramatize the advice and suggestions given the dealer.

TESTS HERE OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor

Engineers of the Federal Radio Commission, now observing with Sherlock Holmes interest the high power maneuvers of KDKA at Saxonburg, Pa., are learned last night.

The object is to clarify in the Commission's mind whether power ratings of 50,000 watts for all of the 55 clear channel stations will interfere with general reception. Only eight stations from coast to coast are now allowed to use 50 kilowatts.

Inasmuch as boosting the power of the 45 to 50 outlets would put at least $20,000,000 into circulation in the next few years in remodeling equipment, it is our frank belief that the Commission favors the increase but is looking for proof to justify the grant. So we find RADIO engineers camping on KDKA signals.

Certainly what happens here at the world's most powerful and best equipped station will be a criterion for judgment.

If 50 KW is granted the clear channel stations the Commission is faced with the necessity of granting power increases to the 225 regional stations. To the minds of engineers, these increases would improve reception.

KDKA unleashed 50,000 watts from Saxonburg last night. It was the first time that the plant has radiated "at peak." Previously the plant had been operated nights only on 25,000 watts. When all equipment is installed the plant will be capable of transmitting on a power of 400,000 watts.

In tests made recently with a dummy antenna the 50-KW job operated with 100 per cent efficiency, an equivalent of 200,000 watts.

The fading and deviation in signal strength has been caused by changes in the antenna system. It has been found necessary to alter the eight-acre antenna, largest in the world.

Other annoyances were caused by synchronizing the Saxonburg transmitter with the transmitter at East Pittsburgh. This has been accomplished practically and it is now possible to operate the two transmitters simultaneously or separately with the same efficiency.

QUESTION A DAY:

I have heard Milton Cross sing with the Paulist Choristers on the radio, have seen him in the choir of the First Presbyterian Church in New York, and also have heard that he is soloist at the Progressive Synogogue in Brooklyn. There are three religious faiths. What is he, anyway?—B. L. M.

Answer—Not our custom to delve in these matters for public information, but we learn from New York that Cross is Presbyterian. This case somewhat similar to that of Milton Tully, local tenor now making good in New York. At one time Milton sang in a downtown Methodist choir, a Catholic Church and a Synagogue. Milton is plenty Irish.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Hearst Radio Service through NBC-WCAE broadcast the landing of the Italian armada of war planes at Rio de Janeiro yesterday. General Italo-Balbo described the flight across the South Atlantic.

FACES HEARING IN CONTEMPT

Hyman Neiberg trading as the Royal Cigar Company, 1711 Arcena street, was directed to appear in Federal Court January 26 to show why he should not be adjudged in contempt in an order signed by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

He was alleged to have violated a court injunction enjoining him from using labels on boxes of stogies that were similar to those used by M. Marsh & Co., Inc., of Wheeling, W. Va., stogie manufacturers.

STILLS SEIZED ON NORTH SIDE

Prohibition agents reported seizing two small stills in a raid on a building at 3422 Chatham street, where Angelo Profetta, 47, was arrested and later released in bond. A small quantity of moonshine was destroyed, agents reported.

Two barrels of wine and a 10-gallon still were found in the home of John Strezza, 46, at 433 Erie street, Glassport, according to the agents. Strezza was released on his own recognizance.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS KEMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—The gift of radio continues to reap its rich reward with radio as the field of its greatest glorification. The heavy-throated voices of announcers are invading the newsreels, commenting upon the highlights of the day's events as they flash across the screen.

Newsreels call for excitement and enthusiasm, and the noun-and-adjective men of the microphone should be able to provide them in abundance.

It was not so long ago that it was fashionable to pity the lot of the announcer. His was the work of getting the program successfully to the armchairs, a labor for which he received but little glory and little cash. His hours were long and exacting. He had to be as attentive as a movie usher, as careful as a train dispatcher, as authoritative as a head waiter. On the networks he began at a salary of $50 a week and worked all day long and when emergency demanded, far into the night. Fan mail compensated in good part for his lowly economic state in the broadcasting mill.

If he made the grade, if his personality clicked with the earcuppers in the parlors he was advanced from the inferior daytime periods to the evening programs, the programs which pay the freight of radio and which are designed to reach the greatest number of listeners available.

Then if he continued to increase his microphonic appeal he made such contacts as he could, obtained choice assignments with commercial sponsors, charged what he believed his services were worth in addition to his salary and became more and more affluent.

The better known announcers are most certainly not among the downtrodden. With half a dozen commercial programs at their individual commands, they are able to compete economically with many of the most successful artists on the air. They live in the more sumptuous hotels and apartments, not too far from the studios. They are often called upon to give song recitals, lectures, make personal appearances here and there about the country. And now comes the news reel magnificoes with their dotted lines.

Though his public, particularly his sports public—is not as faithful as formerly, Graham McNamee is still the kingpin at the cashiers window. His income from commercial broadcasts, from newsreel accenting, from recitals, writings is estimated at $2,000 a week. Other announcers who are included among those whose greenbacks now turn to yellow are Milton Cross, Ted Husing, Curt Peterson, John S. Young, Alwyn Bach and, of course, Bill Hay, who ushers Amos 'n' Andy into the parlors.

AUTO CODE LAW ON BRAKES HIT

Members of the Pittsburgh Section, Society of Automotive Engineers, at a meeting in the Carnegie Institute of Technology last night, heard City Traffic Engineer Lewis W. McIntyre declare the Pennsylvania state vehicle code is obsolete in its braking requirements.

Stressing the relationship between faulty brakes and traffic accidents, he said the state vehicle inspections last fall showed 26.5 per cent of vehicles' brakes needed adjustment and 3.9 per cent relined. This was an increase over 1929, when 25.9 per cent of the cars were found with faulty brakes.

During the comparative period an increase in traffic fatalities and accidents was witnessed, he stated. He estimated that, in 1930, 32,500 persons were killed in traffic, a million injured and a billion dollars' worth of property damage caused.

NATIVES ARE HOMESICK

DUTY MAKES OUR HERO DIPLOMATIC ROMEO IN WARNER

BY CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

[illegible] the national [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the Warner [illegible] [illegible] kingdom that consists [illegible] drawing rooms and [illegible] And there is a display of military [illegible] and diplomatic neglige.

The picture is titled "The Boudoir Diplomat." It is a highly amusing screen version of the stage play, "The Command to Love."

Accustomed to movie heroes always ready to die for king and country, the hero of this picture is a novelty in that he must make love to the ladies as well. [illegible] the line of recreation, but in the line of duty.

TEA IS SERVED

Go make love to the war minister's wife, he is told. And he does. He serves her tea in his apartment.

The tea isn't wasted either. The lady goes home and tells her husband he should okay some sort of treaty or another—and this is the sole purpose of the romantic intrigue in the first place.

MORE LADIES

Of course it all isn't quite as simple as it sounds. A couple of other ladies are on the heroine's trail and thanks to an abused coincidence, one of them is always turning up in time to add another situation.

Ian Keith plays the dutiful Romeo. The three women are Betty Compson, Mary Duncan and Jeanette Loff. Other prominent players are Lawrence Grant, Lionel Belmore and Andre Beranger.

A monkey travesty on the "Ex-Wife" titled "The Little Divorcee" furnishes some diversion. A travelogue concerning Java is interesting.

Testimony

There is a line that you still hold me by,
There is a spark which does not seem to fade;
Yet it is hard to name the reason why
You should stand out from any other maid.

Times without number I have gone away,
Thinking myself securely free from you,
Only to find my erring fancy stray
Back to the vague and charming things you do.

You are devoid of artifice and guile,
Little you care if lads depart or stay;
Oh, you have been a heart-bruise and a trial,
Yet I am prone to suffer and obey.

I was a dunce to knuckle to your rule—
Yet it was rather sweet to play the fool!

Larry for her partner, but she must keep off her feet!

Nature plays cruel pranks on girls who haven't learned

A marvel at tennis. Everywhere at once, alert and dangerous. Deftly returning each swift play. Smashing the fastest balls with amazing skill.

What a pity she has not learned to stop periodic pains as easily! In just a few moments, with Midol.

One or two tablets, taken in time, will render those dreaded days entirely painless. If your suffering has already started, it will subside in five to seven minutes. No matter how great your usual discomfort. Whether it's fourteen or forty, Midol ends the pain. Safely, and in a hurry.

Many girls are not half as gay under the malaria periodic proves. But it does banish the unnatural pain.

Specialists produced Midol. It is not a narcotic. So you may use it, with perfect confidence, as often as there is the slightest need.

More than one million modern women have turned to these tiny tablets for relief of such suffering. And Midol has removed every excuse forever giving in to periodic pains, headaches, neuralgia, etc.

ville, when he was Burns of Burns and Frabito, experienced one of those tough streaks of luck last season. His "I Tink You Touch" act which had aged, couldn't enthuse the bookers any longer.

A little heartsick over the fact, Burns settled down in Venice, Cal., in a little home he bought with his savings. Shortly after, oil was discovered on the property. Then when he was rich, the vaudeville circuits begged him to return to their stages. Now that he is comfortably fixed for life, the bookers threw 65 weeks of bookings at him.

Fact

Viola Tree, the star of Barrie's "Peter Pan" she wrote that smash expressly for her), is the niece of the famous caricaturist, Max Beerbohm. When she was a tot Beerbohm toyed with Viola on his knees and often scribbled drawings for her of this celebrity or that one.

But she never could be bothered. Instead, she swept them from the table or she cut them up into paper dolls.

Had someone in the tribe been gifted with a swift-thinking tank those caricatures might have been saved—and today they would have brought Viola Tree a tidy sum from collectors of rare things. Instead, she makes her living appearing in shows that unfortunately have brief careers.

A Form of Criticism

Added to our Crisp Cracks from Caustic Critics department is the following from Allen Prescott: "There should be a new song written in Winchell's honor entitled: 'Walter, 'To Ham and to Hold.' Winchell."

That "mugg" should be on Variety!

Oh, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for Mr. Frank J. Wilstach's book of similes: Mont Hurst's: As scarce as silver wedding anniversaries in Hollywood. As big a liar as a circus poster. As phoney as the "thank you" after registering a complaint with the hotel room clerk. . . . As odd as a corset in a chorus girl's dressing room.

Correction

Our recent report that the Washington, D. C., bootleggers ran a ball there and then didn't show up because they were afraid to "turn out," was not accurate.

From several Washington reporters we learn that the ball was a "gag" to attract the police who came to look over the leggers, all of whom busied themselves that night bringing in stuff to make Washington's Xmas merrier.

The Lowdown

Recently in New York a newspaper played up the downfall of a Broadway showgirl. The tale related much inside information on the wayward lassie's career and told of the penalty a femme must pay for Broadway fame, etc.

The ugliest part of it all is that the exclusive story was peddled to the paper by the man who was responsible for her crash.

As If You Didn't Know

Peggy Joyce, it is said, may soon do a column for a newspaper.

"Well, I am not worried. She will never write gossip—as well as she can make it.

Raisa and Rimini To Give Concert

Rosa Raisa and Giacomo Rimini will make their only Pittsburgh appearance this season in a concert in Syria Mosque next Wednesday evening, January 21, for the benefit of the Pittsburgh Chapter of Hadessah. Mme. Raisa will open the program with "Tacea La Notte Placida," from "Il Trovatore," by Verdi, followed by Mr. Rimini in "Largo al Factotum," from "The Barber of Seville," by Rossini. The duets are from "Don Pasquale," by Donizetti, and the duet from "Il Trovatore," by Verdi.

CITY CANCELS TWO TOWING CONTRACTS

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

How He Got His Start.—In the back yard of his home in Rebecca street, North Braddock, he commanded one and all to be present. And as they filed past the gate he took the two pins or two matches which was the price of admission. Spectators who seldom missed a show were Bill Walters and his sister, Cecelia; the Brennan boys, Martin McDonough, Harry Elder, Florence Bott and Sammie Law.

Mr. Pfarr

His audience seated, he retired to the big piano box which was his dressing room. In fitting costume he would make a grandiose appearance as the tumbler. He tumbled. Then he would return to his dressing room, reappear perhaps for a recitation. And so on.

As a boy he was popular with his friends because he was a good actor. In fact, one of his favorite acts was to walk along a street, accidentally bump into a pole or building and weep the tears of a hurt child. This seldom failed to arouse the interest of a kind-hearted lady (there's always one around) who would dry up the boy's tears with a nickel, if not a dime. His friends said proudly of him that he bumped into more poles and buildings than any other of his generation. Usually he shared with them the candy he bought with the sympathetic nickels. His name was, even then, Luke Barnett.

We know of a woman who has a good friend, to say the least, in Buenos Aires, another in Paris and an ex-husband, who is a doctor. When she became ill she went to a hospital and asked her ex-husband to treat her. She also had a telephone put in. And each day there were at least two calls—one from the man in Buenos Aires and another from the man in Paris. They both wanted to know how she was getting along.

Back of the County Airport is a dump where the Union Railroad fills valleys with slag from Pittsburgh mills. Back of the slag dump is a little valley. If people thought much about it, they'd call it Hermitage Valley.

Three hermits used to live there. One, when South Siders years ago boycotted his store, traded for an acre of land and a house. He lives there alone, surrounded with his souvenirs of the past. Hats, umbrellas, canned goods, toys, pictures, barrels of china, odds and ends moved from his old store 15 years or more ago are pile high in room after room, according to legend. Twice a year he goes to the store. Or maybe three times. Stale bread for himself and grain for his chickens are about all he buys. High above him, on two sides, tower mountains of slag. Slowly they close in on his home. The railroad is said to have tried to buy his land, but he won't sell.

A second hermit rented a house not far away. But the railroad bought it, tore it down. The hermit built himself a shack in the old foundations and still lives there.

But the third hermit didn't hold out so long. He had gone there to be alone. And how can a hermit be a hermit with so many other hermits near him? He packed up, not long ago, and moved to another valley near another slag heap, not far away, where he can be a real hermit.

A North Boroughs motorist must have been amazed recently when the driver of another auto leaned out the window of his car and waved an indignant fist. Well, the waver of the indignant fist was Paul Bower, the Bellevue artist whose license number is something like X32831—a nondescript combination. And he was indignant because the license plates of the other fellow's car were PB-1.

Councilman Herron Motor Club Speaker

Frederick Bigger, architect and city planner for the Citizens' Committee on City Plan, will speak at the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Motor Club in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall tonight. Others who will give talks are John S. Herron, president of City Council; Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, and President John M. Rice.

DR. MACGOWAN, DARROW IN DEBATE

Bellefield Church Pastor and Noted Lawyer Heard by 1,500 in Carnegie Hall

A Scotch Presbyterian minister, the "Highland tongue" still with him, couldn't resist the temptation last night. Besides his urgent appeals to nearly 1,500 people in the audience, he turned his oratory and faith in Christianity upon the dissenting Clarence Darrow in the hope, perhaps, that Darrow would see the light.

But Darrow, the professed agnostic, would have none of Dr. Robert MacGowan's theology, and the pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, canny to the last, met blow for blow in their debate in Carnegie Music Hall on "Is Religion Necessary?"

Dr. MacGowan held that it was; Darrow asked for "the evidence" that man has a God, a soul, a reason for religion.

RELIGION HELD NATURAL

The clergyman held it a part of man's nature to feel God, to see His handiwork in nature, in the order of the world. He dismissed Darrow's objection to a heaven, saying that it needn't be emphasized, because:

"It is enough, it is best that men live so that when the time came they would be ready. Let there be no heaven, if you wish, but it is better at the end of the day that you have lived the right kind of a life. It is better that men be prepared, if only for the next generation."

DARROW DOUBTS HEAVEN

Darrow had asked about Heaven, how it came about, where it was, how tickets could be obtained, baggage sent and what railroad he could use to get there. He said:

"People who say there's a heaven are plumb crazy.

"Try to find out where it is. It's just 95,000,000 miles to the sun, nearest to the earth, and then you haven't started. Heaven's a vague dream, born of hope and fear. There's nothing in it but the dread of death and the hope that springs eternal. I used to want to live forever. The hope has never entirely gone away. But I have given it up, and have more consolation and peace. I tried to believe something I couldn't. I think you people would be happier if you did it."

Dr. MacGowan reached his peak of oratory in answer to this. He faced Darrow and branded him an atheist, not an agnostic. He poked fun at the attorney for being interested in the "blank," the nothingness of agnosticism and atheism, saying:

"I believe that Mr. Darrow has a religious complex in his nature. The fact that he comes here to discuss religion is a back-hand compliment to us."

BOTH PARRY AT START

Both speakers parried during their first allotment of time. Dr. MacGowan, introduced first by Elbert H. Moses, chairman, presented an orthodox Christian sermon, in which he carefully avoided mentioning matters of religious sensitiveness because, he explained to Darrow, "you cannot hammer at them with those people out in front."

He said religion was necessary because in this world religion suggested itself everywhere as part of the scheme of things.

DENIES PRAYER EFFECTIVE

Questioning the statement that Dr. MacGowan "felt God," Darrow said he might have, but Darrow couldn't. Denying the good of prayer, the attorney asked for proof that any one had been answered.

"The Germans prayed for victory during the war, and the French prayed. So did the British and the Turks, Americans and Austrians. Blooming idiots for it. A lot of good it did, and they left behind heaps of dead. If God is in heaven I know of no reason why the war came to torture the earth.

Following the debate, members of the audience, meeting the debaters on the platform, questioned them for half an hour.

STEEL OUTLOOK FAVORABLE IN U.S. REPORT

Adoption of Short Shifts In Many Mills Has Aided Employment Situation Here

Notwithstanding the moderate recession of the major industries and unsatisfactory employment conditions in Western Pennsylvania, the outlook of the steel industry has brightened, and prospects for improvement in the present year are favorable, according to a report of the employment service of the U. S. Department of Labor.

The adoption of four six-hour shifts in place of the usual three eight-hour shifts in many of the mills in the vicinity has eased the situation, the report avers.

No marked change was shown in other miscellaneous industries and most plants worked part time with limited forces during the month of December.

The seasonal increase in holiday trade provided temporary employment to several hundred additional workers in various department stores throughout the Pittsburgh district. Construction work has been continued beyond the customary closing period, giving employment to large numbers of men.

RAILMEN PLAN JOBLESS AID

Efforts to arrange employment for members now working part time were being made today by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen committee meeting in the Mayfair Hotel.

J. A. Zanger, chairman, said the members are contemplating seeking adoption of a system whereby the men steadily employed would work fewer days to provide extra employment. The meeting affects brakemen, baggagemen, switchmen and yardmen of the Pennsylvania System, lines west of Pittsburgh.

The meeting, which opened yesterday and will continue through tomorrow, is being attended by 51 members. The measure adopted at the meeting will be submitted for consideration of the railroad. Zander said the relief measure, if adopted by the system, would be continued pending movement of the national organization for six-hour day. H. E. Demerest, of Grand Rapids, is secretary, and U. D. Hartman, of Richmond, Ind., vice chairman.

MEMORIAL MEN ELECT TODAY

Election of officers will close the two-day convention of the Memorial Craftsmen of Pennsylvania today at the William Penn Hotel, with early indications that William Eisenbrown, of Reading, will be named president.

Two business talks featured the morning session. Lester E. Harris, executive secretary of the Memorial Craftsmen of America, and Mrs. Anna Marshall McCracken, of Carnegie Institute Fine Arts department, being on the program. President A. H. Luckenbill, of Middletown, was presiding.

Discussion of the deferred payment plan was to be heard during the afternoon, led by Tom Jones, of Barre, Vt. Trade talks and committee reports will precede the election.

The annual banquet was held last night, Walter L. Horigan was toastmaster.

Wild Tribesmen Ask Places In Army

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. (INS)—For the first time in history, members of the wild tribe of Igorottes in the Philippine Islands have applied for enlistment in the United States Army, the War Department was advised.

The commanding officer at Camp John Hay, in the mountain province of Benguet, wrote he has received applications from a number of men of the Kalinga branch of the Igorotte tribe.

GROUP TO HEAR FATHER COX

The Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of Old St. Patrick's Church is to be the principal speaker at the annual Washington Infantry banquet marking the birth of George Washington. The banquet this year is to be held in the Fort Pitt Hotel Saturday night, February 21.

The banquet will also mark the seventy-fifth anniversary of the adoption of the name of the military group. The national colors of the Women's Defense League, a war-time unit now disbanded, will be presented to the infantry by Mrs. Charles H. Sallada of the One Hundred and Second Regiment Association, an auxiliary of the Washington Infantry during the Civil War.

DRIVERS FREED IN TWO DEATHS

Charles H. Schmidt, 21, of Saw Mill way, began a 15-month parole yesterday, following his plea of guilty to an indictment of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Elmer Dengler, 10, of 2029 Howard street.

According to police testimony, Schmidt drove his automobile on the left side of a street car while the boy and others were crossing in front of the car, from which they had alighted at East and Suffolk streets.

John Macri, 22, of 10 Roberts street, was acquitted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Daisy Richards, 15, of 1406 Fifth avenue, in an automobile accident at Second avenue and the Hazelwood bridge. The girl was a passenger in Macri's car when it crashed into a pole, August 27.

William Rankus, 30, of Penn township, was fined $50 and paroled for two years yesterday in Criminal Court on three charges of assault and battery which followed an automobile accident in Sandy Creek road, October 15, when his car ran off the road and injured three Penn township girls, Margaret Walsh, Mary Whitehead and Betty Moyer. Rankus was acquitted of a hit and run charge. The fine was imposed on a charge of possessing liquor.

Postal Violations Charged in Arrest

F. J. Alberte, 69, proprietor of a store at 1623 Beaver avenue, was arrested by postoffice inspectors who charged him with violating the postal law by placing cancelled stamps on letters that he mailed. A number of letters with cancelled stamps, were said to have been addressed to newspapers in Pittsburgh and New York. He will be arraigned today before the United States commissioner.

Valley Auto Club Elects Officers

The Valley Automobile Club at Pitcairn elected these officers last night: Clarence Noll, president; Thomas A. Russell, vice president; M. H. Stout, secretary-treasurer; Paul Noll, assistant secretary; and these directors: E. K. Lang, J. T. Anderson and Eli Martin.

CLARK PLANS MUNICIPAL GARAGE

Establishment of Pound Expected in Month; Saving Seen for Autoists, Public

Two city automobile towing contracts with private garages will be cancelled within the next 30 days, Public Safety Director James M. Clark announced yesterday, following a conference with members of the Better Traffic Committee. The committee advocates establishment of a municipal garage to care for cars towed in for infractions of traffic ordinances.

Under the plan devised by Clark and sanctioned by Major Charles H. Kline, the city's contract with the New Allies Garage, caring for illegally parked automobiles in the fourth police district, will terminate February 12. The contract with the Abe Calig Garage, Roberts street, will end February 13. Notice to the Allies Garage was sent by registered letter Wednesday. That to the Calig Garage was to be sent today.

SAVING EXPECTED

Director Clark intimated that a municipal garage for illegally parked cars would be in operation within a month. Garage contracts will be cancelled as conditions warrant, he said.

City officials believe the new proposition will result in savings to motorists and to the city. Many abuses have been charged against the present system, it was pointed out. Motorists whose machines were impounded charged tools and valuables had been taken from the cars. Clark on more than one occasion has had garage owners "on the carpet" for such alleged offenses by employes.

FUND PROVIDED

The Better Traffic Committee has been at work to bring about the municipal garage for more than four years, according to Frank L. Duggan, chairman. Council set aside $14,500 in the Public Safety Department's budget for the garage this year.

The plan to be inaugurated has many advantages, according to Lewis McIntyre, city traffic engineer. He said:

"Fortunately the Pittsburgh towing project now appears to include a municipally-operated pound from which cars may be retrieved with the least amount of trouble by offenders."

Among those who conferred with Clark yesterday were B. R. Marshall, assistant superintendent of police; Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey, McIntyre and Duggan.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

I am here for relief. You have to come and get it personally. You can't do it through your senator or congressman. They are worse off than we are. Times are so hard they are letting constituents into their private lunch rooms to buy their representatives meals. Congress hasn't done anything in so long that even the lobbyists that work on commissions are starving and hollering for personal aid. Congress turned down the 15 milion food bill, and passed 15 million "to improve national parks." You can get a road anywhere you want to out of the government, but you can't get a sandwich. Well, in two years there won't be a poor farm that won't have a concrete road leading up to it.

Yours, WILL.

DOCTOR AND WIFE SURPRISE THIEF LOOTING HOME

BURGLAR FLEES WITH CASH, CLOTHING

Leaps Out of Window as Pair Returns to Penn Township Home; Overlooks Gems

Surprised by the sudden return of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Willetts of the Saltsburg road, Penn Township, a burglar ransacking the home escaped capture last night by jumping out a dining room window, taking with him apparel valued at $620 and $100 in cash, Dr. Willetts told police.

The thief stole dresses worth $285, a coat of Mrs. Willetts valued at $185 and two of the doctor's coats valued at $150. He overlooked $40 in a pocketbook of Mrs. Willetts and $200 worth of jewelry, police said.

A white limousine, believed to be Negro owned, was seen parked in front of 602 Negley run, West Homewood, at 8:45 p.m. yesterday, police said. Several persons, said to have been in the car, entered the home and robbed it, police said. Six suspects fled, police said. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

Three handcuffs, one a Negro fled without loot from the grocery of Samuel Stein, 312 Gist street, when Stein called for help instead of holding up his hands last night.

Stein told police he was alone in the store when the men, each carrying a revolver, entered and ordered him to stick 'em up. His cries attracted passers-by and the bandits fled in an automobile they had parked near the store.

TAX ASSESSORS FACE SUITS

Wholesale court action against city assessors on increased tax assessment is planned by 500 residents of the Lincoln avenue district, Twelfth Ward. They met last night in a stormy mass meeting at the Lemington School.

Attorneys for the Lincoln Avenue Board of Trade, sponsoring the move, distributed blanks for the filing of appeals with Common Pleas Court. These appeals may be filed tonight, tomorrow or Monday nights at the office of Alderman William A. Means.

Attempts of persons believed friendly to the city administration to collect the assessors' appeal refusal cards on the promise that the cases "would be taken care of," were scored by speakers. Attorneys told residents that the lack of a refusal card will not prevent an appeal to court. Owners were advised to pay taxes promptly for the discount and then litigate their claims.

Out of about 1,000 persons in the Lincoln district who filed appeals with assessors, only a few received reductions, speakers claimed. Citizens said that since the assessors had made wholesale refusals to reduce the increased assessments, it would be a waste of time to seek a hearing before the assessors sitting as a board of revision, and that the most direct policy is court action.

A. A. Donofri, chairman of the tax committee of the Board of Trade, presided. Attorneys handling the appeals are Hyman Schleisinger and James Malone, Jr.

Appeals to court will be based on five points, attorneys say. These are depreciation of buildings from physical wear and tear; general downward tendency of realty values in the district; declining income from buildings; actual losses sustained in many cases, and on the grounds of equalization.

Vision Plane Crash In Burning Building

An old two-story frame building at the Bellevue end of the new Jacks Run Bridge, used as a field office by Booth & Flinn in construction of the Ohio River boulevard, was demolished and set on fire by the contractors today. The flames gave rise to a report that a dwelling or fallen airplane was on fire.

JOAN, DOUG, JR., SHUN PUBLICITY

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, Joan Crawford, of the movies, passed through Pittsburgh in a dream last night.

En route from New York to the West coast after a short visit Doug's mother, the famous movie pair shunned publicity. The interview passed along to the newsgatherers waiting in the chill blasts beneath the Pennsylvania Railroad trainshed by the Pullman conductor, was to the point. It follows:

"We do not wish to be disturbed."

The Pullman secretary explained more in detail. He said:

"Joan was not feeling well this evening. She and her husband retired soon after dinner."

Ban Street Pay Until Inspected

No final payments will be made for street construction hereafter until the job has been inspected and approved by the Bureau of Tests and himself, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang announced this afternoon. Yesterday he ordered 200 feet of concrete torn up at Fifteenth street between Penn avenue and Pike street, declaring tests disclosed specifications for an eight-inch base had not been uniformly observed.

PAINTERS NAME PITTSBURGHER

Three Pittsburghers were honored at the closing session of the state convention of Master Painters and Decorators, yesterday in Reading, when Pittsburgh was chosen as the 1932 convention city. Herman Werner was elected vice president and John Dewar, treasurer of the Pittsburgh association, was chosen delegate to the international convention at Memphis, Tenn., next month.

J. J. Kassouf, secretary of the North Side Chamber of Commerce was selected as special representative to the new president, H. E. Glosser, of Reading.

HINT FOUL PLAY AS MAN DIES OF WOUNDS

Parnassus Youth Found Near Railroad, Gagged, Injured; Believed Robbery Victim

Frank Adams, 21, of Parnassus, who died in Allegheny General Hospital last night from a fractured skull was believed by state police today to have been a victim of foul play.

Adams, found early yesterday near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near Black Run Bridge, at Oakmont, was taken to the hospital where he died without regaining consciousness. A loaded automatic pistol was found under him, detectives reported.

State police said the youth, who had lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Adams, on the property of the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Coal Company, near Parnassus, came home shortly after midnight Wednesday, telling his sister, Blanche, he was in an auto accident and was going away. His billfold with $11.50 missing was found near him.

The train crew which found the victim reported a handkerchief had been twisted about his mouth. His skull apparently had been fractured with a blunt instrument, police said.

Railroad Official Begins Work Here

J. C. Rill, new general superintendent of the Eastern Ohio general division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was to take up his new duties here today. His jurisdiction embraces the Eastern, the Panhandle and the Wheeling operating divisions. Mr. Rill comes to Pittsburgh from Philadelphia, succeeding Norman B. Pitcairn.

Now—an amazing new type of Radio Tube!

Greatest improvement in tubes since radio began. Four pillars instead of two. TWICE as rigid. TWICE as durable. No extra cost!

"I thought the band was right in the living-room." "You'd swear we had a brand-new radio." "That's what I call tone," people are saying. Here, without doubt, is the greatest advance in radio performance in a long time. 4-pillar Eveready Raytheon Tubes.

Four strong points of support instead of two, as in all other tubes. Four rigid posts, bracing the fragile tube elements north, south, east, and west. Twice as many pillars as the ordinary tube. Immune to the jars and jolts of shipment and handling. Free from the punishment of vibrating dynamic speakers in the radio set itself.

Eveready Raytheon took an old engineering principle . . . as old as the pyramids . . . and turned it to the advantage of the radio tube. The results are sensational. Programs come in now with the living, breathing realism of the original performance at the microphone, miles away.

Get the free home demonstration

Words won't tell you. An electrical test in the dealer's store can't give you the picture. You must hear these marvelous tubes at home, in your own set, under the exact conditions they must meet every night. Not just one new tube, but a complete set. Then, only, will you know the truth about tubes.

National Carbon Company, Inc., has arranged with its hundreds of dealers to give you this free demonstration in your own home. Without obligation. Without ballyhoo. The tubes can talk for themselves. Get the free demonstration NOW.

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC.

General Offices: New York, N. Y.

Unit of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation, the many fragile parts in the tube can be assembled with watch-making accuracy, and cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position! They are always poised for performance, like the strings of a fine piano, tuned for a concert!

In ordinary tubes, the many delicate parts have only a two-legged foundation—like the goal-posts on a football field. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps, vibration from dynamic speakers—all can impair their vital accuracy. And that means uncertain results . . . unreliable reception!

The radio service-man, who keeps your set in repair, is a technical expert . . . he knows tubes! He can explain the value of the 4-pillar principle, and demonstrate it, in your own radio set.

1931 AUTO SHOW

starts Saturday at

Motor Square Garden

East Liberty · Baum Blvd. at Beatty St.

TOMORROW—right after lunch—starts Pittsburgh's Auto Show, the biggest motor event of the year.

It's the biggest show ever held here—practically a duplicate of the national show in New York last week. Pittsburgh is lucky—it's one of the first cities to see this huge array of new car models.

New models . . . new lines . . . snappier curves . . . luxurious color combinations. You'll see all the leading car makers' latest creations—all of them in one grand display.

Whether you've planned to buy a car or make the old one do, you simply must come and look. Chances are you'll change your mind . . . some time this year you'll probably decide to get a new car. Then, if you've seen the show, you'll know what the bargains are . . . and feel certain you've bought the best car.

For there really are bargains. Prices haven't been so low in years. And improvements have seldom been so lavish.

Add to that the fun of listening to Don Bestor and his William Penn Hotel Orchestra for hours at a time . . . it's an extra feature we've been fortunate to get. Or indoor golf, on the largest course in the country. Show hours are from 1 to 11 P. M. every weekday through Saturday, January 24.

During the week, three new cars will be given away at the Show. You'll surely want to be in on that!

Philanthropy Of Health Club Wide

Health Colony Club chronicles have been enlarged by the record of philanthropic work done at Christmas, one of the most extensive pieces of holiday work this very active club has ever put over. Miss Anna B. Dietrich, chairman of the Christmas committee, assisted by Mrs. E. D. Harshbarger, president of the club, Mrs. George A. Ley and Miss America Wallace, looked after the Cresson Sanatorium gifts.

Bolts of dress materials to be made into children's dresses and of flannel for underwear, dozens of pairs of stockings for both children and adults, as well as hundreds of games, dolls, toys, books and packages of candy and personal gifts for the eight boys in the Health Colony Cottage were sent there.

Mrs. Ley, chairman of the Leech Farm committee, and her assistants, who have the all-the-year-around care of parentless boys and girls at the farm, furnished a special Christmas for them.

Another phase of the club's holiday work was the generous contribution made to Torrance House for Blind Girls, canned fruits, home-made jellies and preserves, a clothes basket filled with groceries, an attractive gift for every girl and a new rug for the dining room.

A gift of money was sent to a needy family and other contributions were made through two newspapers.

PIECES ACHIEVE ORIGINALITY THROUGH CLEVER HANDLING

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph.

PARIS, Jan. 16 — The piece treaty is still of vital importance in the sartorial world. One finds the finest frocks and coats still making use of cleverly handled and grouped pieces to achieve not only a clever silhouette, but an air that bespeaks exclusiveness and originality, in other words, a frock that is not likely to be exploited and copied. Another important bulletin is that the ensemble is still with us and that the coat and its accompanying frock of fine material cut on semi-tailored lines is still a most desirable, aristocratic and withal useful costume. We rather fancy that it will be more seen in 1931 than has been the case for some time. It permits of much novelty and we know some women who have a long and a shorter jacket to match certain ensemble frocks. Whatever obtains, the jacket will again be of great importance and almost every frock will have some kind of accompanying jacket.

AND NOW TO FINISH with prophecies by introducing two sketches of an ensemble that in itself is prophetic of the new season's sartorial trend. It is a semi-tailored model by Macey Rouff, who has made it of wool crepe in a most becoming blush green shade. Black astrakan forms the collar and borders the coat. The treatment and disposition of the "decoupes" or seam pieces are most interesting, for they are used to give a slightly flaring silhouette at the waist line. Similar pieces are used to make attractive trimming over the sleeves and pockets.

THE DRESS, of the same material, has a seam slit and cuff bands of sheer, handkerchief white linen. A pert little bow on the bodice and a circular peplum on the skirt give a jaunty air to the tailored silhouette. The skirt has grouped box-pleats at the front and sides. Decoupes similar to those on the coat are used at the sides of the bodice and on the sleeves at the elbow.

Tomatoes Have Elements Everybody Needs

Rich in vitamins, the tomato is one of the few foods equally valuable eaten raw, freshly cooked or canned. Once regarded as poisonous, the tomato today is a justly popular food.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

When is a vegetable a fruit? When it is a tomato!

We have come to look upon the tomato as a vegetable. Personally, I don't care whether you consider it a vegetable or a fruit, so long as you include it among your favorite foods.

... would have ... eat ... the "love apple." ... Still goes by that name. ... when it was looked upon as ... Certainly ... would have ... eat ... Today it's a popular food.

The tomato is rich in vitamins ... one of the few articles ... which are just as valuable ... when ... fresh, cooked ... or canned. So far as the vitamin ... content is concerned, it does ... matter how the fruit is ... served.

GOOD FOR INFANTS

In recent years ... has been ... found that it is most advantageous ... to give tomato juice to ... infants. This has become a ... common practice. It is hoped that ... many old-time ailments may soon ... disappear from the lists of nutritional ... diseases in infants and ... children because of this practice. ... There can be no doubt that ... mothers have come to recognize ... the importance of the tomato in ... the feeding of the youngsters.

There are many ways of serving the tomato. On this account ... it can be used more frequently ... than ... other vegetables and the ... family will not complain of being ... served ... the same old thing.

Tomato juice, cream of tomato ... soup, stewed tomatoes broiled to ... a ... tomato salad and ... combined with other ... foods ... bacon or eggs ... are ... a few of the ways to serve the luscious ... apple. There are dozens of others.

NOURISHING VALUE

Don't forget the nourishing value and the valuable vitamins the tomato can give you. It supplies elements of greatest importance to every member of the family.

I am really distressed over the failure of many families to eat fresh fruits and vegetables. They are satisfied with meat, bread and potatoes. I haven't a word to say in criticism of these old friends of the table. But we need fresh things ... the things the vegetable world can give.

I cannot regard a diet as complete unless such things as tomato, lettuce, apple, orange and similar raw things are regular parts of the eating program. They contain certain living elements that we need. Please don't forget this.

Everywhere and in every season the tomato can be had. By all means, use it.

ring, then stir constantly until it reaches the hard crack stage or 290 degrees if you are testing the candy mixture with a thermometer.

When the hard crack stage is reached, add vinegar and remove the candy from the fire, stir well and pour into well-greased pans or onto a marble slab. As soon as it cools enough for it to be handled, butter the hands and take the whole mass, pull it out as far as possible, fold together, pull again and continue until the candy is light yellow and porous. This takes about 10 to 15 minutes. When of the right color and consistency, pull into a long strand of the desired thickness, cut in 1-inch lengths with greased shears and lay on a buttered platter to cool.

UNCOOKED FUDGE—Beat 1 egg white until stiff and dry, add a pinch of salt and beat again. Add 2 cups of confectioner's sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Mix well and add 2 squares of chocolate, melted, ½ teaspoon corn syrup and 1 tablespoon cream. Mix well and add enough more confectioner's sugar to make the candy of the desired consistency.

Drop from a teaspoon into spirals on a buttered wax paper or onto a large, flat platter and set aside to become firm. Nuts may be added just before turning the mixture out.

"Dear Sally:

"What do husbands admire anyway? I was always taught that if a wife dressed well, kept herself perfectly groomed and charming, her husband would stay crazy about her. And when I was first married that seemed true.

Careful of Appearance

"I had a good position when I met my husband and I used to spend most of my money for clothes. I am not particularly pretty, but I have a good figure and I know style—and I received plenty of compliments on my appearance. When Johnny and I began going together he used to say I was the best-dressed girl he knew. He bragged to all his friends about how wonderful I always looked, and how proud he was to be seen with me. And after we were married it was the same. He'd say, 'Honey, you're a Queen,' every time we dressed to go out.

"You may be sure I worked hard to keep him thinking that way. Even after we had been married for four years and had a baby I did not let my appearance slump. I realize now that maybe he didn't notice me half and sometimes he complained because it took me such a long time for my facial treatments, but I knew how dangerous it was to get careless, so I kept it up. And I was sorry for women who neglected themselves. I was sure they would lose their husbands. And now see what has happened to me.

Attracted to Girl

"This summer a crowd of us—three married couples—went out to a ranch for our vacations. There was a girl on that ranch who had never heard of style. She was the most careless thing I ever saw. She never dressed up, and her hair always looked as if a cyclone had struck it. She often had a smudge on her nose and her usual costume was a man's shirt and a pair of dirty, worn-old hiking trousers. Yet every man for miles around seemed to be crazy about her.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH

the amazingly better motor fuel that sells at regular-gas price

WINTER IS HERE! Most mornings are cold, snappy. As you step gingerly out of the house, you pause for two or three deep breaths of crisp, fresh air. Man, it's great to be alive!

But what about your car that has stood alone all night in a cold garage? How does it feel about winter? Is it going to start easily . . . or are you going to have a long tussle, wearing your patience and the car's battery almost to the breaking point?

You approach apprehensively, and wrinkle your brow as you step on the starter. One second . . . two seconds . . . r-r-r-r-r-r-r-r-rmph, there she goes! . . . purring as contentedly as a cat on the hearth-rug. You had forgotten for a moment that you are using ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH—the amazing new motor fuel, famed even above other things for its sensational qualities that make for quick-starting and a shorter warming-up period.

Many people have asked us why WHITE FLASH is such a good cold-weather fuel. The answer is simple. Instant-starting depends on the ability of a gasoline to vaporize (mix with air to form gas) readily at low temperatures. The Distillation Test shows that ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH has no equal in this respect. This means less use of the choke; and gives you real economy, for it means a minimum of gasoline used, and practically no crankcase dilution—both important economy items.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is a definitely better gasoline. It has been developed through extensive scientific research to give you super-performance at regular-gas price. Crystal-clear in color . . . flashing pick-up . . . packed with power . . . and none of those objectionable odors which are so unpleasant in a closed car in winter. Little wonder that thousands of motorists are describing it, "Extra in everything but price!"

By JAMES J. LONG

Another Test of Baer.
Heeney Less Dangerous.
Pirate Playing Pilots.
Football Is Defended.
Cavideo Tells Benefits.
Hagen Rated Greatest.

MAX LIKELY TO WIN IF NOT CARELESS

IF MAX BAER learned enough in his recent Eastern debut against Ernie Schaaf to build up a defense, instead of sticking out his chin continually in the mistaken belief that he can take any punch the other fellow is capable of delivering, the young heavyweight from the Pacific Coast will have a good chance to get better results tonight in his second New York appearance. For this time he will face an opponent not more formidable than old Tom Heeney, a tough baby in his time, but noticeably softened since Gene Tunney, in bidding farewell to the ring, cut him to pieces in 11 rounds on July 26, 1928.

Max Baer

Some of the New York experts profess to feel that Baer's handlers are getting unwisely in sending him against a man of Heeney's experience and reputation, but the fans of this district who saw the New Zealander in action twice last year against George Panka and Emmett Rocco can't see where Max will be in any grave danger if he fights along common-sense lines. Since he took that beating from Tunney, Heeney isn't nearly as rough a customer as he used to be. He is no longer the same Hard Rock from Down Under. He carries a lot of old cuts that open easily and he looks so bad when he starts to bleed that the referee often feels inclined to halt the proceedings.

THOSE TWO BOUTS in the North Braddock Bowl and at Motor Square Garden are only part of a record which shows in general that Heeney has become much softer. He has slipped quite a distance below the standard of toughness he represented when he knocked out Jimmy Maloney in one round, won decisions over Jack Delaney and Johnny Risko and fought draws with Jack Sharkey and Paulino Uzcudun.

Since taking that pasting from Tunney, Tom has been mixed up in nine fights and has lost as many as six of them. He has been knocked out twice by Victorio Campolo and Tuffy Griffiths, has lost decisions to Maloney, whom he once stopped in a round, and to Otto Von Porat, Ernie Pinero and Frank Cawley, has won decisions over George Hoffman and George Panka and won from Elzear Rioux on a foul.

THERE IS LITTLE evidence of Heeney's former dangerous qualities in that list of performances and it looks from this distance as if the young, strong, willing Baer ought to win decisively provided he displays a reasonable amount of caution.

Heeney has not yet lost everything, of course, and still retains enough to make it folly for any foeman of such limited experience as Baer to throw defense to the winds and try to show how much he can take. But if Max has profited by the Schaaf bout, and gives some part of his attention to protecting himself, the Coast youngster ought to be the winner, possibly inside the limit.

IT IS NOT because there is anything important at stake on the outcome that tonight's bout is of more than ordinary interest, but because Baer's future is going to depend upon how he behaves right now. That defeat at Schaaf's hands need not necessarily blast Max's career. He made an unwise start, but it isn't too late for him to get headed straight again. He has a bright future and may go far with his hitting power and aggressiveness if he can be cured of his cockiness and his apparent desire to show how many punches he can take on the chin.

SOME OFFICIAL MINOR league baseball averages for the 1930 season which have just been made public show that four more former members of the Pittsburgh club were busy during the year in the double player-pilot role. They were Jake Pitler, George Whitted, Everett Booe and Billy Webb.

Pitler played 91 games at second base for his Elmira club in the New York-Pennsylvania League and batted .305; in the same league Webb divided his work for Binghamton between first and third bases and hit .298 in 68 games; Whitted played first base for his Durham club in the Piedmont circuit and batted .239 in 101 games, and for Greensboro in the same league Everett Booe played first base and the outfield and hit .318.

Jake Pitler

THE FOUR MEN named formed only part of the Pittsburgh club's representation among the minor league skippers who took an active part in their teams' game last season. It is doubtful if any major league club had more former members serving as playing managers in the minors than the Pirates.

Among others who filled positions in the lineup or at least took turns as pinch-hitters were Billy Southworth at Rochester, Joe Bush at Allentown, Cotton Tierney at Joplin, Billy Gleason at Springfield, Mass., Roy Elliam at Montgomery and Walter Barbare at Talladega.

FRANK CARIDEO, the Little Napoleon of Notre Dame's conquering armies of 1929 and 1930, comes to bat in defense of "overemphasized" football. "I'm only 22, a comparative kid, I realize," he says, "but football has done too much for me to let the quips and charges of overemphasis go unchallenged. I've had a wonderful experience playing the game. It has taught me the value of discipline, self assurance, training, stick-to-it-iveness and determination. And then there's the matter of psychology. One of the first things I learned from Knute Rockne was the simple old-fashioned value of a good, healthy grin. If an opponent notices you are weakening he'll tackle you that much harder. He'll play that much harder. Smiling or even laughing out loud at an opponent often is good psychology when the going is roughest."

IT WAS A general belief among the Notre Dame players following the action of Moon Mullins at one time or another in the game after being thrown like a sack of bran that gave the Irish renewed spirit and won the Northwestern game, Jim Cavideo relates. He also recalls that they beat the Army in 1928 by fighting and pushing the Cadets.

"We called every player on the Army team 'captain,'" he says, "that is, all except the mighty Gagie. We called him 'cadet.' Our quips befuddled him. Toward the end of the game Freddie Collins started a play and shouted to Chris, 'Come on, Cadet old boy, follow me this time, if you can.' Cagie did; so did most of the other Army players. Well, Freddie just sucked 'em away out and then flipped a nice pass through the big opening to O'Brien, who went over for the winning touchdown."

HOWARD JONES, Southern California's football coach, disagrees with the Eastern critic who says Alabama had the best line and Notre Dame the best backfield during the 1930 gridiron season.

The Trojan mentor points out that according to Jones who says Notre Dame not only had the best backfield but by all odds the best line as well. And Jones makes the decision from spot observation.

Walter Hagen

ONE GOLFER MAY be rated best at a certain kind of shot, and another may be given top ranking in a different specialty, but if you care to take Leo Diegel's word for it the best all-around shot-maker of them all is Walter Hagen. Diegel puts Bobby Jones first in the use of wooden clubs, and Tommy Armour is his No. 1 choice for skill with the irons. At putting, he thinks Jones and Horton Smith lead the field, but as a combination of all the shot-making qualities, Diegel believes Hagen is without a rival as the best in golf. He looks for 1931 to prove it, too, for Hagen is being tipped to have a big year. Walter is keeping in condition and is more serious about his play than he was in 1930.

LEAGUE PREXY SEES 1931 AS BANNER YEAR

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Add thrills to the effect that the present depression would cut off officials of the Mid-Atlantic league spoke he dismissed with the announcement today by President M. Daly, president of the league, that the circuit would come out with an even better front in 1931.

Daly gave his statement to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph when this paper called. Daly at the time at St. Francis College, Loretto, where he is athletic director. The Mid-Atlantic magnates will convene in annual session at Uniontown next Saturday, and the prexy asserted it was entirely safe to state that the league will be in the field.

"I cannot say for a certainty that all of the eight towns which finished the season will be with us again, but I do know that each town will be represented at Sunday's meeting," said the league's executive.

OTHERS SEEK MEMBERSHIP

"You can be assured that the Mid-Atlantic will operate," continued Daly. "We have applications for membership from two new towns in West Virginia, Charleston and Huntington have applied for membership and we have invited the representatives of these towns to the session. I do not know what the outcome of these applications will be, or whether all of the eight clubs now owning franchises will continue, but these things will be taken up at the meeting."

Daly is convinced that night baseball will help the Class C circuit this year. The experiment was tried by several of the towns last season and it worked out satisfactorily. No less than five members of the league—Charleroi, Cumberland, Jeannette, Johnstown and Wheeling—are equipped for the nocturnal form of diamond entertainment.

AUTO TRAVEL BIG AID

The Mid-Atlantic, it develops, has solved the transportation problem, a big item which had laid waste more than one of the smaller belts of baseball. By owning their own autobuses or automobiles, the various clubowners have done away with costly tariffs.

"The mileage proposition is such a big question that we could not continue if we had to travel by rail," elaborated Daly. "We are able to convey our players over the roads in buses and autos and thus cut deeply into running expenses."

The eight clubs of the organization are Charleroi, Clarksburg, Cumberland, Fairmont, Jeannette, Johnstown, Scottdale and Wheeling.

Davis, who succeeded Secretary Wilson, was born in Tredegar, Wales. Secretary Doak, third incumbent in that office, was born in Wythe County, Rural Retreat, Va. THE COWBOY IS NOT A WESTERNER—The original cowboy is not a Westerner, but a New Yorker. The name "cowboys" originally was applied to a marauding band of Tories infesting the neutral grounds of Westchester, N. The first cow-punchers were farm hands hired to handle cattle transported on railroads during the Civil War.

CATHOLIC U. TOPS DUKES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Catholic University defeated Duquesne University, 29-24, here last night.

The Pittsburghers, who had waltzed to a victory over American University Wednesday night, apparently were unprepared for the brand of basketball displayed by Catholic University.

Duquesne lost McGeever, its star center, in the way of the first half on personal fouls and could not get on the job after.

After that the lead see-sawed for the most part, Catholic University was ahead, 13-12, at the half. Duquesne soon regained the lead and with 10 minutes to play had a 29-17 advantage. From this point the Catholics went to the front, never to be headed. The lineup:

Tied for third place with scores of 146 were Macdonald Smith and Mortie Dutra, the Carnoustie star shooting a 74 and the Spanish Sharpshooter 75.

CHANGE IN CARD AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Old Man Flu has taken a fall out of his second boxing card in Pittsburgh this week. Last Monday night, Johnny Indrisano, of Boston, was unable, because of an attack of the illness, to meet Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, in the main bout at Motor Square Garden, and Pal Silvers, of Brooklyn, had to be substituted on short notice.

Tonight, at the Moose Temple, downtown, a shift will have to be made whereby a double windup card becomes a straight show of one 10-round battle and three six-rounders all due to the fact that Old Man Flu has laid his icy fingers on Johnny Warner, of Clairton, and knocked him right out of his 10-round tilt with Moose Butch, of Oakland, with whom he battled back in their days as amateurs.

Matchmaker Apples Meyers of the Moose, has signed Pete Mazzeo, of Cleveland, one of two fighting brothers, to take the place of Warner against Butch, but on account of the short notice, he has cut the bout to six rounds.

The other 10-round bout, really the feature event, stands as arranged. It brings together Jimmy Kelly, of the North Side, a wow of a puncher, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, a slugging chib-fighter who stopped Billy Bulley in two rounds in the same ring two weeks ago. Harry Fine, the fighting taxicab driver, of Detroit, who was born here and has returned to make his home in Pittsburgh, battles Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, in the second bout, and Richard Greene, Homestead Negro, and Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, former junior national amateur lightweight champion, are in the opener at 8:30. Butch and Spiegel are southpaws and good punchers.

Between Rounds

Ken Hargraves, Negro lightweight, of [illegible] on foul over Charley Krauchi, 5 rounds.

New Signboard For Bednar, Of Pirates

NOKOMIS, Ill., Jan. 16.—(AP.)—This Illinois mining town is to put up another signboard.

On the concrete highway near Hillsboro is a large sign that tells passing motorists they are "12 miles to Nokomis, home of Jim Bottomley."

On the other side of Nokomis another sign tells motorists about Charley Ruffing, the Yankee pitcher, who also lives here.

Now that Andy Bednar, another native of Nokomis, is a member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, merchants have decided to honor him with a similar signboard.

New Kensington will box under the management of Mike Ray from now on.

Entries for the A. A. U. junior championship boxing tournament at the Keystone Club next Thursday and Friday nights close Monday evening at A. A. U. headquarters.

Ruth Ellsworth meets Pearl Swoboda and Gladys Bedell meets Ruth Stark in 100-pound bouts, and Mary Ann Hughes Mae's best bout in challenging the Garfield Sock Girl, meets Irene Hoag, here and All Pittsburgh meets Agnes Dupont, both 90-pounders, and Jack Delaney will referee the matches.

Frankie Klick boxes Santiago Zorilla at San Francisco tonight. Other bouts carded tonight include: Billy Jones vs. George Nichols and Frank Borgorski vs. Joey Bedini, Eddie Davis, Young Botched vs. Tommy Kidd, Murphy and Yonder McLaughlin vs. Joe Brady, Philadelphia, and Johnny Lassiter vs. Bobby Stone, Saxonia, Tech N. J. Mickey Lello, Irish Charley Nelson vs. Frankie Albano and Frankie La Lay vs. Louis Kid Santi, Brooklyn.

The scholastic basketball tidbit of the first half City League chase, the all-important clash today between the undefeated title contenders of Section I, Westinghouse and South, features today's school court program. Three contests are listed in both sections, and in all three divisions of the Junior League, but the battle on the South Side between the Silver Lakers and Grover Washabaugh's quintet usurps the major portion of the spotlight.

South has come through three games in the first round of the city title campaign with triumphs, while Westinghouse had won twice. Schenley and Peabody have fallen before the attack of the Zahnsermen, while Peabody, Allderdice and Connelley have been tripped by South.

Today's setto promises to be a duel between Westinghouse's crackerjack scoring trio of Ware, Wadsworth and Dye and South's set of stars, Mervosh, Lengwin and Zakerewski.

GAMES TONIGHT

Duquesne vs Georgetown, Washington, D. C.
Grove City vs. Allegheny, Meadville.
Thiel vs. Bethany, Bethany, W. Va.
Marshall at Salem

By JESS CARVER.

The local college basketball courts are idle and dark tonight, what with Pitt and Tech idle and the Dukes still kicking about in Washington. Maybe it's just as well, after the sleepy-time act Pitt and Fordham put on in the Stadium last night.

There are two important ball games listed for the district, however, one of which would be worth a capacity crowd here. Allegheny and Grove City tie up in Meadville with the Methodists out to make it five in a row and Grove City anxious to prove its mettle by taking their really formidable opponent over the jumps.

In a Tri-State Conference game in Bethany, Thiel College, in undisputed possession of the Conference lead, risks its neck against the unbeaten Green Bisons. The Lutheran necks are in grave danger tonight, grave danger indeed.

The Dukes complete their stay in the nation's capital, winding up a three-game invasion by trading blocks and shots at the hoop with Georgetown University's Hilltoppers.

PITT OUTLASTS RAMS

It looked like amateur night in the Stadium Pavilion as Pitt and Fordham attempted to give the boys a basketball game. Both tried hard, but apparently were unable to work up enough steam to set the machinery working right. Pitt won by 22 to 14.

Aside from the early minutes of play, the contest was listless and at times ragged. It developed into what really was a foul shooting contest, Pitt ringing up 14 of its 22 points from the charity line and the Rams collecting six of their 14. Had Mike Mulligan, Ram guard, been a trifle more accurate in his free-tossing, Fordham might have been more in the ball game, for Mike missed no less than six of nine attempted.

The Panthers carried all the power during the early moments of play, and led by 9 to 1 before the Rams could count a field goal. Milligan tossed this one after 14 minutes of the first half had been expended. Expended is good, though I doubt if full value was received.

Milt Cohen (pronounced Coheen by Doc Carlson) and Albright and Capt. Willie Arture dumped in field goals for Pitt during the first half. Milligan and Hurley, a pretty fair center, by the way, tallied from the floor for Fordham, which with four out of a dozen foul tries, gave the Rams eight points to Pitt's 11 at the intermission.

BAKER PLAYS

After the between half smokes had been consumed the ball clubs went back to work and work it was. You'll watch the old game for a long time before you'll see two clubs staggering and fizzel like Pitt and Fordham did last night during the second half. Pitt maintained its lead principally because the Rams did a lot of fouling and the Panthers made their attempts for the most part good at the foul line. Pitt collected one field goal (patent applied for by Willie Arture) and nine out of 13 fouls during the second half.

Timmy Lawry again was the old Dead-Eye-Dick kid at the foul line, sinking six out of six.

Co-Capt. Eddie Baker broke into the action late in the game, along with the Pitt reserves which Doc Carlson inserted into the game to put on his pet passing act. Baker didn't even take a shot at the hoop, though he had possession of the ball within scoring range twice.

A redheaded chap, Weiss, subbing at a forward for the Rams, was the ace of their attack and floor play and appeared to be the only man on the floor who knew what day, or night, it was. The lineup:

TEMPORARY QUARTERS FOR LINKSMEN AT COUNTY COURSE

When the golf course in the South County Park is opened for play in the spring, the historic farmhouse pictured above will be used to provide locker room accommodations and professional's headquarters. It is the old Linhart Mansion, known in modern times as the Hill Mansion, and is located in Spreading Oak Grove, adjacent the seventeenth tee of the golf layout. John Jay Burke, city office manager for the county parks, is shown in the picture pointing out the salient points of the mansion to a spectator during an inspection of it. Work will begin immediately to renovate the building.

DETROIT, Jan. 16.—The local Olympic hockey team received scant appreciation from the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets as the latter aggregation romped to a 5-0 victory here last night.

The Olympics were beaten from the start by a faster, smarter, more aggressive hockey team.

Messrs. Gordon Fraser et al. saw to it that any personal differences arising from the Detroit-Pittsburgh game resulted in a clean-cut triumph for the Yellow Jacket crew.

JACKETS BOOST LEAD

The game was interesting enough until the waning minutes of the final period when the victors unleashed a three-goal attack that settled the outcome conclusively. Up to this time, the Olympics, by their dogged efforts, stood a chance of at least squaring the score.

The ill feeling which cropped out between the two teams when they played recently in Pittsburgh was again in evidence with players on both sides going out of their way and neglecting the puck in an effort to deal out a stiff body check to a rival.

Eight minutes after the game started Eddie Rodden bored in on Venne who was powerless to save. McIntyre then took the puck and slammed it past Venne for the second goal.

Individual feuds which had been smoldering during the game broke loose with the start of the third period.

CAM WALLOPS FOE

Brophy was maneuvering for a shot when Ouelette tripped him. Referee Hughitt called for a face-off, but imposed no penalty. Meanwhile Cameron Proudlock and Sailor Jimmy Herberts were having a little tiff all their own.

Proudlock apparently settled the issue by deftly walloping Herberts over the head with his stick and was banished for five minutes.

Two quick goals by Fraser and Gregg sent the Yellow Jackets total to four and removed all local interest in the game.

Halliday added the final goal with scarcely a minute to go on a solo effort. The lineup:

Detroit		Pittsburgh
Venne	G	Ouelette
Sloan	D	Fraser
Hollweber	D	Gregg
Newman	C	Brophy
Gillie	R W	Proudlock
Steele	L W	Greer

Sparks, Detroit; Williams, R. Bodnar, Lindbergh, Metras, Tabor, Maples, Herberts, Pittsburgh; McGuire, McCarty, Fields, Rodden, Halliday, White, Smith, McIntyre, Official, Timmins.

Scoring—First period: Pittsburgh, Rodden, 5:10. Pittsburgh, McIntyre, 17:55. Penalties, Brophy, Sloan, Second period: Pittsburgh, Fraser, 9:12. Pittsburgh, Proudlock, 10:00. Third period: Pittsburgh, Fraser, 0:12. Pittsburgh, Gregg, 11:01. Pittsburgh, Halliday, 18:20. Penalties, Greer, Proudlock, Venne, Ouelette, Gillie, Steele.

SCHOOLEY TO VISIT FARM

Roy D. Schooley, president and manager of the local hockey club will pass Sabbath on the farm at his Niagara Falls farm tomorrow, and the recalling of one or more stars from his Canadian Pro League club may result from his visit. Danny Maloney, manager of the Falls team has been hard in his praise of Duke Kwasney, giant defense man, and Frank Lowrey, forward, who was not at the best of condition when he appeared here for a trial. Schooley has decided to inspect the Falls players personally before making any changes in the Pittsburgh squad.

A third chance in the International League schedule has been made to give Pittsburgh another Saturday night game. The date with Syracuse billed for Tuesday, January 27, has been postponed to Saturday, February 7. Cleveland, originally carded as the Jackets' February 7 foe, will be met there on February 8.

INDOOR TENNIS PLAY CARDED

The Pittsburgh Golf Club's spacious indoor tennis courts will be the scene tomorrow and Sunday of an invitation net tournament to which leading tennis stars in men's and women's ranks from throughout the country have been invited.

Those invited include Gilbert Hall, New York; John Van Ryan, Philadelphia; John Hennessey, of Philadelphia; George Loft, Jr., of Philadelphia; Edward Hendron, and B. Bell, of New York, and Eddie Jacobs, Pitt University star.

Women stars invited are Mrs. J. D. Corbierre, Mrs. William Endicott, Mrs. J. L. Breuner, Mrs. George Harding, Mrs. Marne Talfrey and Miss Virginia Rice, all of Boston; Mrs. Harry T. Cross, of Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Herman Stump and Mrs. Edward B. Whitman, of Baltimore; Mrs. DeLloyd Thompson, of Washington, Pa., and Mrs. John Van Ryan, of Philadelphia.

Play tomorrow will be at 10 a. m., and at 2 and 8 p. m.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Albert Wittmer, Jr.

When the New Jersey Legislature convened at Trenton a few days ago, one of the new members was Albert Wittmer, Jr., Republican, from Mercer County, who is pictured herewith as he appeared at his new post. Wittmer is none other than the Al Wittmer who starred at Allegheny High School some years ago, to be followed there as an athletic luminary by his brother, Eddie. Upon being graduated from the North Side school, Al went to Westminster College, at New Wilmington, Pa., and, for some reason or other, wasn't a howling success as a fullback there. He left the small college and entered Princeton University, where he blossomed out into an all-America center. Brother Eddie again followed in his footsteps as a backfield ace at Old Nassau.

In recent seasons, Al has been assistant football and varsity basketball coach at Princeton, and next fall he succeeds Roper as head coach of the Tiger gridders. Incidentally, Roper also is in politics, having been a member of the City Council in Philadelphia for a number of years.

It's quite a far cry from the early days of Wittmer in athletics here to his present high estate, and his old friends are proud of his success. He's a striking example of a local boy who has made good in a big way.

Did you ever hear the story about the Negro fighter who was taking his customary pasting and had begged his manager to toss in the towel to save him from further hammering and found all of his pleas were in vain? . . . As they went into the third round, the fighter began to take it on the run . . . Finally, becoming winded, he halted in his own corner long enough to slip his manager the knowing wink intended to produced the fluttering towel . . . The manager ignored him . . . The next time around came a yelp from the fighter for the signal that would have ended his distress . . . Again no response . . . Then, on the third lap, the hard-pushed big fellow warned: "Boss, you-all bettah toss in that towel now, 'cause ah won't be comin' 'round this way no mo'."—HARRY KECK.

ROSE DEFEATS M'ARTHUR

Benny MacArthur, former sparring partner of Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champ of the world, took a neat boxing lesson from Billy Rose of Cincinnati, last night in the main bout of 10 rounds at the Palisades, McKeesport. The fight, after the third round, was decidedly in favor of the Cincinnati entry, who pounded MacArthur all over the ring with a volley of short rights and lefts to the head and body. Rose had a weight advantage of four and one-half pounds, coming in at 144¾ against 140¼ for MacArthur.

Teddy Welch and Larry (Kid) Kaufman, Tube City rivals, battled through eight slow rounds in the semi-final to an official draw. Welch weighed 145¼ while Kaufman came in at 145.

Buddy MacArthur, brother of the main bout performer, was credited with a technical knockout over the rugged Paul Rinsko, of Monessen, after 30 seconds of fighting in the third round of the second bout. Both fighters weighed in at 168¾.

GOLF PRO JOBS OPEN HERE

The situation as it concerns the golfing pros in this district has been somewhat clarified with the announcement that two veterans, Dave McCormick, at St. Clair, and Al McBride, of the Schenley public links, will remain at their posts for the coming season; that Jimmy Morrison has resigned at the Pleasant Valley Country Club at Connellsville, and that Ned McKenna definitely is out as assistant to Emil Loeffler at Oakmont.

Now all that remains to be done is to fill the vacancies and name the successors.

As for the much-sought-after pro job at the new South County Park, Fred Baroni, former Stanton Heights pro, and Bob Graham, local public links star, are reported leading the parade of those anxious to land the position.

The report that Jack Cawsey is to replace McKenna at Oakmont has been denied.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN,
The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER V.

The night before the earthquake and fire in San Francisco, Caruso and Madame Fremstadt appeared in Carmen. When the glorious-voiced Caruso, as Don Jose, pursued and knifed the Carmen of Fremstadt, we all thought it the last word in emotional thrills. Six hours later, with San Francisco tumbling and burning around us, as Jimmy Hopper put it, the thought of that puny stage tragedy made us burst right out in a hysterical laugh.

Jimmy Croffroth

I had been to the show with Jimmy Croffroth, famous as Sunny Jim, of San Francisco promoting fame. They called him Sunshine Jim because of the fact that he always insured his open-air shows with Lloyds, of London, against rain. It is a fact that he never collected a cent on that particular gamble, for he seemed able to pluck sunshine right out of the darkest clouds.

Rickard, on the other hand, never would insure against rain and he was fond of computing the gigantic amount he saved in premiums by simply trusting to luck that never deserted him in over 20 years of promoting in the great outdoors.

MORE THAN "LUCKY"

Although, as I explained in a previous chapter, Rickard didn't stumble into good weather blindly. He was foxier in that respect than many suspected. He would plan a bout, say in the first week in September, but, before naming the exact date, he would go down to the weather bureau and have an expert check back for 50 years on the weather of—say, September 12. The weather man would decide the date. If, in the checking, he found that September 6, over a 50-year period, had shown "fair and bright," that would be Rickard's cue. Weather, in this respect, usually runs true to form. When we say "miserable day, isn't it?" We probably don't realize that the same question might well have been asked on that identical day for the past thousand years.

I merely repeat this to show how thorough Rickard was when most people put it down to his "infernal luck."

LIKE COL. BRADLEY

Col. E. R. Bradley, the noted breeder of race horses, is another weather prophet who has his ace in the hole just as Tex did.

The colonel for years has been an authority on "good weather." Few know his secret. Recently he told Frank J. Bruen, lately the general manager of Madison Square Garden, about it. His prophet's insight comes from an old-fashioned medicine almanac, published out in a Western town. Folks used to get an almanac in every drug store. Try to get one now! In the almanac, Bradley would get a line on the weather as predicted ahead of time by the United States Weather Bureau. It wasn't guess work, although Bradley smilingly allowed people to think so. If you rang up Bradley to get a line on the weather for a Palm Beach lawn party on a certain February night, Bradley would say:

"I'll call you back in 15 minutes."

And, sure enough, he'd give the good or bad news. He never failed to hand out the correct data. He has changed hundreds of open-air social dates from the wetter to the better.

Bruen ran three open-air bouts, according to the almanac, and then tried to defy it by billing Sharkey and Campolo on one of the almanac's forbidden dates. The show was washed out before the preliminary boys had climbed into the ring, washed out so badly that Madison Square Garden declared the bout off entirely.

THE 'FRISCO HORROR

Coffroth, Jack Barrett, managing editor of the San Francisco Examiner; Al Baum, then the star operator of the first regular "leased wire" from a New York to a Pacific Coast newspaper, and I were in Rudy Fishbeck's cafe talking over things in general and boxing in particular. It was late, early morning, in fact, for a great, blood-red sun was just coming up over the Oakland hills. Suddenly there came a sickening rumble as the great city began to rock like a cork in mid-ocean.

No one had to tell what it was. We knew too well. Old Mother Earth was having another of her tantrums and before we could move or say a word the plaster and the fixtures began to rumble down around us. I had been in any number of earthquakes, but this one was a lulu.

A great mirror fell out of its setting and crowned the bartender. As he lay squawking among the splintered glass, Coffroth, walking behind the bar, placed a bottle of champagne before each of us and said quietly:

"Gentlemen, let's have a drink on the house before it tumbles down on top of us."

DEATH AND RUIN

And, with San Francisco pitching over on its ear, we cracked those bottles and drank to the living. Barrett, who since has died, put his bottle under his arm and started out. He had just reached the threshold of the door when the entire brick and stone building front fell at his feet. He came back, white-faced, and said he had decided to remain indoors a while longer.

When the rumbling stopped and the city had settled back onto what was left of its foundation, we went out into the most glorious morning I ever have seen. It did seem strange that such a tragedy could have been visited upon a sleeping city while dawn was entering with all of the colorful beauty of a California sunrise. Mockery somewhere.

We went out. Ruins and death was on every hand. People were running and rushing about like so many ants. Confusion was at its wildest. And then, from south of Market street in the poorer section of the city, came black and ugly smoke, the forerunner of the world's greatest fire. Flames followed the first smoke as the fire began to lick up tenement houses with the greed of a boa-constrictor devouring a lambkin.

A GREAT STORY

All of us went along Market street toward the ferry. As we passed the general offices of the Western Union Telegraph Company, Barrett, a corking newspaper man, said he was going to "put a story on the wire."

"San Francisco is doomed," he said, "and we've got to tell about it."

We found our way to the operating room and Baum began the task of jacking in a loop to New York. Baum afterward the president of the Pacific Coast Baseball League and now a sports editor of the Examiner in that city, sat in at the wire. Coffroth and I went out and scouted up every item of the great catastrophe that we could gather. The impression seemed to be that it was nation-wide. The first thing we heard was that Chicago was six feet under water. We kept running back and forth reporting to Barrett, now in his shirt sleeves, and he scribbled the stuff in long-hand into a running story of the calamity. Baum sat like a stone man, tattling it over the wires to an outside, unsuspecting, horrified world. I don't know how long we were at it. It seems hours now, but suddenly there came the soldiers, bayonets fixed, ordering us out of the building. We had not even noticed that the fire was engulfing us block by block, so busy were we with the tragic tale that was to reach the hearts of the entire world.

ROUTED FROM DUTY

San Francisco's swan song! I don't desire to take any credit for it. Actually it was my first news "assignment," but to little Jack Barrett must go the glory of turning out the most remarkable news story of all time. He didn't quit his amazing yarn until he actually felt the jabs of those bayonets. The soldiers, saving us from ourselves, drove us down the smoke-filled stairway, else we might have perished in 10 minutes' time. Always it will remain with me the greatest "story" I ever was on. It was one time that a press agent told the truth and nothing but.

STOCK MARKET TURNS DULL ON RISE

Trading Desultory, Light With Price Movements Narrow; Commodities Off

NEW YORK, Jan. 16 (AP).—The stock market paused to breath today, after its abrupt decline of the previous session, and recovered a little in spots, as bears grew nervous and drew in their short lines.

The market experienced this on the whole, however, as neither speculative faction manifested much confidence. Trading was desultory and light, and price movements were narrow. Fresh lines of short selling dampened the efforts of bulls.

News of a cheering character to the security markets was somewhat complex. Cutbacks and delays in the major construction trades in the sidewalks. It was recognized acknowledged in brokerage circles that yesterday's decline was an overcompensation to excessive selling, but it was sharp enough to inspire caution.

In addition to wheat, silver was again under pressure, slipping back to 28 cents an ounce, duplicating the historical low established a week ago. On the other hand, export copper prices for March and April shipments were increased .05 and .10 of one cent a pound respectively. Export sales continued in fair volume, but domestic buying was still quiet, and it was said in trade circles that the situation during the next few weeks will depend upon continued demand from abroad.

It was notable that the Annalist weekly index of commodity prices showed a negligible change from the previous week. For five weeks it has fluctuated within a range of less than half a point, the narrowest movement in a year. This lends support to the hope that stability is being or has been achieved.

Furthermore, the Annalist index of business activity, as announced in preliminary form for December, showed a reduction of only 1-5 of a point from November, which is described as a tentative sign that we have reached the bottom of the present depression. This index is weighted for seasonal trends.

The foreign exchange market gave further evidence that the efforts to relieve the strain on sterling exchange on Paris were meeting with success.

Credit rates remained stationary.

YEAR'S FOREIGN TRADE OFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Total foreign trade of the United States for the calendar year 1930 is estimated in the neighborhood of $6,875,000,000, as compared with $9,640,000,000 for 1929.

Exports for the year are expected to be slightly above $3,850,000,000, and imports $3,025,000,000, as compared with $5,240,995,000 and $4,399,361,000, respectively, for 1929.

Predictions of trade for 1931 are generally optimistic.

Wall Street "System" Myth Is Exploded

By B. C. FORBES

IS THERE, or is there not, a diabolical system in Wall Street constantly conspiring to rob the public by luring them into the stock market by marking up quotations deceitfully and then pulling the props so as to compel the public to bail back that stock at terrific loss?

Duke Doubts Jim's Story Of Being Held Up

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert, rich society girl, shares her home and fortune with her newly found half-sister, Kitty, whom she discovers living in poverty. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance with whom she had broken her engagement when she learned he was a fortune hunter. She now fears for Kitty and calls upon Duke Garson, Kitty's underworld friend, to use his influence. Duke refuses to interfere. He tells Connie he is interested in her. Connie, fascinated by Duke, is disappointed to learn he is an adviser to the underworld. She sees him talking to Higgins, the butler. Later, Duke explains that Higgins informed him of her mother's carelessness with her pearls. Connie realizes she loves Duke. Kitty and Jim announce their engagement. Connie assures Duke his vocation makes no difference to her. He tells her that she might change his whole life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV

But a fragment of a second separated Connie's lips from Duke Garson's. Yet that instant was as long as the ages, because it embraced enough to set keep them apart as the same mighty, invisible force intruded between them with an unpredictable restraint. Specifically, what separated them was the long shaft of light from a motor unexpectedly approaching up the driveway toward the house. Immediately, the spell was broken, scattered.

Garson straightened, and lifted his head. "That looks like Tracy's car, doesn't it?"

"It is!" Connie exclaimed.

The machine rolled up the perfect arc of the drive came to a stop; the lights were extinguished, and Jim Tracy stepped out, his eyes searching the veranda.

Garson and Connie rose and, seeing them, he came up the steps. He had left his hat in the car, in the poor light his face looked strained and worried.

Jim Held Up

"The damnedest thing happened to me!" he said vigorously. "Can I use your telephone? I want to notify the police in Stamford."

"Jim, what is it, what's happened?" Connie cried softly.

"That bridge over Oak Creek—I had just crossed it when I saw a car stop ahead of me and two men stepped out and signaled me with a flashlight. Tracy said in a tight voice. I thought they were in trouble and I stopped. One of them stepped up on the running board and pushed a gun at my head."

"Gracious!" Connie's voice was low, ringing.

Garson looked at Jim silently with intent eyes.

"They made me hand over my wallet. Fortunately there wasn't much in it—less than a hundred dollars. It was either a case of deliver or get shot—there was nothing else I could do. They ordered me to turn my car around and drive back in the direction I suppose as soon as I was out of sight they went the other way. The best thing I thought was to come right back here and notify the police."

Connie, startled and sympathetic, urged Jim to sit down.

"Will the police be able to do anything, Mr. Garson," she asked.

"Probably not." Garson replied. "Still it will do no harm to notify them. It's strange, Tracy, they didn't take your wrist watch—it's entirely visible on your right wrist. Small operators, such as they evidently were, don't have the usual scruples about taking jewelry. I've known them even to take fountain pens."

Makes No Report

Tracy looked down at the watch on his wrist.

"I guess they must have overlooked it," he said. They seemed excited and I know I was myself. I can't even give an accurate description of the car or men—except they were kind of young and tough-looking. Foreigners, I suppose. I'd like to get my money back, of course, but I suppose it would be a waste of time to notify the police they'd probably waste a lot of time asking me foolish questions and accomplish nothing in the end."

Well I certainly would notify the police," Connie declared. "It's the most ridiculous thing I ever heard of—nothing like that ever occurred in this neighborhood before. You might have been killed, Jim."

"I guess I was lucky to get off as cheaply as I did, and I suppose I ought to be grateful that they didn't take my car, but—but I'm not. I'm sore as the devil at having been held up and robbed. I'm going to get my money back, Connie, if it's the last thing I do. I'm not going to be held up and robbed and then just forget it. I'm going to get busy on it right away."

Jim looked at his watch. It was now past midnight. "Thanks, Connie, I believe I'll go that. Where are you going to put me, in the east room?"

"No, that's Kitty's room, now," Connie told him. "You can take the room across from it."

It was sort of an established institution around the house, Garson. In fact I used to stay over night so often when we came in from late parties when Connie and I were engaged.

Garson looked at her and smiled slowly.

"There's nothing queer about a man being held up on the road—it happens every day and every night. The queer thing is that Tracy should come back and tell such a yarn. He was no more held up than you were."

Duke Doubts Story

"In the closet of the hall upstairs," she informed him.

"Well I think I'll go up and get the hat. Hope my car didn't wake up your mother or Kitty."

"You know where to go, Jim," Connie told him, family-style. "I'll see you at breakfast."

The screen door opened, slid to from the inside and they saw Kitty's form wrapped in pale silk and her sleepy, inquiring face peeping out at them.

"What's going on?" she whispered. "I heard your voices."

"It's nothing, dear," Connie told her. "Jim has had some trouble with his car and he decided he would rest here on the davenport."

Oh!"

The door closed softly and Kitty disappeared; Tracy stopped a few minutes longer with them on the veranda, where he lit a cigaret and tossed it away half finished. When he, too, had disappeared into the house, Connie and Duke Garson looked at each other.

"What a queer, terrible thing to happen!" Connie breathed.

Garson looked at her and smiled slowly.

"There's nothing queer about a man being held up on the road—it happens every day and every night. The queer thing is that Tracy should come back and tell such a yarn. He was no more held up than you were."

DAILY TRUE STORY — In Case of Doubt

Barbara was slender, yet with just a suggestion of softly-rounded, feminine grace. Her complexion was almost too good to be true, yet it was really her own. Her features were fairly regular, but her three loveliest points were, her softly waving, goldy-brown, bobbed hair, her velvety brown eyes with the little flecks of light in them, and her adorable smile.

Just to be in Barbara's presence for a half an hour was to fall a victim to the attractiveness of a rarely charming personality. She was understanding. She was sympathetic. And above all things, she was clean-cut.

She showed it in her dress. She never indulged in a lot of bargain garments. She only bought a few things each season, but they were enormously right—exactly right, and her friends recognized this. Younger girls admired and copied her, and as might be expected, Barbara was popular.

Billy Somers had been her playmate and pal from childhood, and Barbara looked upon him as a sort of big brother, to fall back on when she wanted something special, or a pal to play around with occasionally when she wasn't especially thrilled by any other he-man in sight.

Then Capt. Oliver emerged from the background. He and his mother returned after years of absence to the Oliver home. They were as the family had always been, very exclusive, and the girls of Briarmont admired the good-looking and amazingly well built and groomed captain, from a distance. It fell only to Barbara's lot to get to know him quite well.

She was a public stenographer, and the captain frequently had occasion to call upon her in a business way. He looked her up at her home one evening, to get some hurry-up work he needed done. That was the beginning.

Falls in Love

Barbara felt for the first time in her whole life that she was really and truly in love, and the captain showed every evidence of reciprocating. He took frequent opportunity of dropping in of an evening on some pretext or other—at first, then later he came as a matter of course.

Barbara was amazed at the simplicity of his mind, when she got to know him—just like a big boy who was eager for a companion who could talk his language. It became quite usual for them to drive in the dusk of a summer evening in his shiny little roadster, or to go to some exclusive place for dinner and dancing.

Barbara had considered herself as good as engaged from the time he had slipped his hand over hers in the fragrant dusk, and had told her she was the girl he had dreamed of finding some day, but they must love each other patiently and loyally for a while, as marriage wasn't possible while his mother lived. Her health was known to be very poor. She leaned heavily on him, and she would not brook another one sharing him with her, then there were property matters.

Barbara was too happy to care about that. He was hers and that was what counted. She didn't tell a soul—except Billy, and he had been her confidant so long that she knew she could trust him.

Billy had been rather quiet, and he had taken both her hands in his, and with his clear gray eyes looked directly into her brown ones and said, "I hope you'll be as happy as you deserve, Barbara, and that Jov will go with you to the end of the way. But promise me one thing, if you and the captain ever fall to hit off, or if you need a friend, you will let me know." Then he had turned and walked swiftly away, leaving Barbara rather sober—and wondering. The look on his face had told her what she had never guessed before.

She and the captain were much together, and it was generally understood by the other fellows that there was a "Keep off the grass" sign in Barbara's garden. And so summer merged into winter, and winter into summer.

Mother Dies

Sometimes Capt. Oliver was restless, and again he was listless and just wanted to sit and tell Barbara of his travels and troubles, and of the exacting character of his invalid mother. The girl who loved him sympathized, but there was getting to be a wistful expression on her face she had not used to have. So many of her own friends had homes of their own—cozy little places with flowers, and now and again a lovely baby to boast about.

And so time went on. Barbara's grandmother's dower chest had been taken for her Hope Chest and it was full, but at any mention of this, the captain was inclined to frown and sigh and say, "Let's not talk about that. We can't marry yet!"

Then the morning came when Briarmont was agog with the news that the imperious Madam Oliver had passed away suddenly, and some way Barbara couldn't grieve. She couldn't go to him, but she expected him to come to her.

It was late in the day before he telephoned, and there was a remoteness about his voice which puzzled her. For weeks he came and went as if in a hurry, and even then he seemed absent-minded—as if he were elsewhere.

He had never given her a ring, for he had told her it wasn't best. But once when he had gone away he brought her a lovely vase of cloisenne. It was a real work of art, and she had loved it.

Telephones Billy

Madam Oliver had been in the family burying plot three months. Barbara dressed with special care for the coming of her lover. She was conscious of having faded just a little in the waiting. But tonight there was a return of the old sparkle and radiance. She was gay with the old-time gayety. She talked of the things she knew he liked to talk about, but it was as if he receded as she came near. He declared that he must go early, as he had letters to write—that he was feeling the reaction of his years of close devotion to his mother. He would see her again soon.

Barbara stepped to the mantel as he stood, hat and cane in hand.

"I've something," she said cheerfully, "which I am going to ask you to take with you. I have no engagement ring to return, but in this lovely little vase, which I have treasured, are the ashes of the roses of what I thought was love. I rather think I have been in love with love."

"Barbara, you don't mean—"

She nodded.

As she listened to the hum of his motor starting at the curb, she took down the telephone and called Billy Somers. She had him on the line in a moment.

"Billy, old pal," and her voice quivered just a little, "when you have a chance, come and see me. I—I need you!"

"Coming," sang back Billy, as he snapped up the receiver without any further delay.

So enthusiastic is Levelland over prospects for getting the Texas & Pacific Railroad, it brought along its quartet for the rally yesterday. A special song "brought down the house," and had to be repeated. The quartet was composed of J. Warren Peavy, T. J. Williams, J. N. Murrah and G. G. Tubb. The song was as follows:

The T. & P. is the one for me,
I need her in my biz;
I'll see her through, that's what I'll do.
Because she is a whiz.
She's going north from Big Spring,
She'll go to Vega, too;
And all the points between shall touch,
Just like she says she'll do.

Disarming the Communist

City Council by Granting the Agitators a Hearing Made Them Look Foolish

City Council proceeded shrewdly in granting a respectful hearing to the delegation of Communist agitators who, uninvited, broke in upon the Council meeting Wednesday.

The Reds no doubt expected to be thrown out or denied an opportunity to speak, beaten and arrested. They deserve no such kind of treatment. It permits them to pose as martyrs. The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church.

By listening to them patiently and subjecting their wild statements to analysis and investigation, Council disarmed the agitators and made them look foolish.

The deluded Reds showed utter unfamiliarity with the civic problems that they discuss so glibly when there is no one to challenge the truth of what they say. They proved wofully ignorant of the facts of the unemployment situation. They thought that Council had the power to use for relief activities the $6,000,000 bond issue authorized by the people for the building of a subway. Asked to name needy families whom the city has neglected, they cited cases in which, it develops, help has been extended as often as 11 times.

There is nothing that tends more to silence blatherskites than to make them look ridiculous.

Soft Hats for Inaugural

Pinchot's Decision in Favor of Informality Will Not Injure Him in Public Esteem.

Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot, unimpressed by custom, will wear a soft hat when he rides to the State Capitol for the inauguration next Tuesday.

His decision in favor of informality will not injure him in public esteem. One of the things for which Thomas Jefferson is held in grateful remembrance by the American people is that he did away with pomp at his inauguration, riding to the Capitol on horseback, tying the horse to the fence, and walking into the Senate chamber unattended.

The high silk hat, which Mr. Pinchot is abjuring, is not worn naturally by Americans. To be "high hat" has come to mean to be haughty.

The late Alexander P. Moore, during his later years, frequently found it necessary, for reasons of state, to wear a tile. He confided to friends that it always made him feel more or less self-conscious.

When he was ambassador to Spain he was proceeding one day with a party of Pittsburghers through the streets of a Spanish city. Groups of soldiers were frequently encountered who presented arms to the ambassador.

"It's not me they are saluting, it's the high hat," Mr. Moore remarked, jokingly.

In Pennsylvania we salute the man, not the hat.

Language Study

New Methods of Instruction Proposed by Pittsburgh Teachers Promise to Be More Effective.

With interest and approval it is noted that a new system of teaching modern foreign languages, prepared by a committee of Pittsburgh teachers, has been adopted by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction.

The teachers are Dr. C. F. Hoecht, of the Pittsburgh Public Schools; Miss Bertha Mabel Rogers, of the Schenley High School; Miss Stella M. Stein, of the South High School; Miss Agnes Burton, of the Dormont High School; Carl Maffeo, of the South Hills High School, and Miss Emily Redmond, of the Peabody High School.

Every observer has come in contact with intelligent boys and girls who, after studying French, Spanish or German for several years in our public schools, have been unable to carry on a simple conversation in the language or to read simple prose easily.

The teachers have concluded that the fault lies in the laborious method of grammar study and translation that has been followed for so many years. The new plan reduces translation to a minimum and aims to teach the pupils to read and speak the language without thinking of the English equivalent.

The plan has been pursued by the most successful of the private teachers of languages. It should increase linguistic ability in the public schools.

The Ideal Husband

Another Recipe.

Every week or two some college professor, usually a bachelor, draws up plans and specifications for an ideal husband. Dr. Edward Lyman Cornell, of Northwestern University, is the latest savant to do so. Here is his list of the qualifications that prospective wives should look for in their intended mates:

1. He should allow you to audit his finances.
2. He should be healthy enough to swim 25 yards in 30 seconds.
3. He should be willing to rear children.
4. He should be ambitious and industrious.
5. He should be willing to make you an equal partner.
6. He should possess tact and a good disposition.
7. He should be mentally stable.
8. He should not be a braggart.
9. He should be of good character.
10. He should maintain a good appearance.

You can identify this ideal husband easily by the wings sprouting out above his shoulder blades.

Use That Spare

By Nelson Harding

This tour of nineteen thirty-one
That leads back to Prosperity,
Needs that saved spare to speed it on
And keep it moving rapidly.

When one flat tire slows you up,
Put on the spare without delay,
It is the wisest thing to do
If you would be upon your way.

MACHINE AGE PHILOSOPHY

By Archibald Henderson

Science and invention have brought us comfort, a measure of leisure, labor-saving devices, factories, recreational toys such as movies, talkies, radio in countless number. But have they brought us a philosophy of human life, counsels of perfection for a better mode of existence?

The exponent of a mechanized civilization, the wealthiest man in the world as the result in great measure of such mechanization, is Henry Ford. Does he regard the machine age as harmful? Quite the contrary. In his view, this age should be called the Power Age. Its effects, in his judgment, have been almost uniformly beneficial. Hear his words:

"The way to liberty, the way to equality of opportunity, lies through power; the machine is only an incident. The function of the machine is only to liberate man from brute burdens and release his energies to the building of his intellectual and spiritual powers for conquests in the fields of thought and higher action. Machinery is accomplishing in the world what man has failed to do by preaching propaganda or the written word—ushering in the United States of the World."

Not everyone feels so confident as does Ford of the blessings of machinery. Like Butler, Oswald Spengler, author of "The Downfall of Western Civilization," prophesies a time when man will plot the machine from his memory and his environment and create about himself a wholly new world, in which nothing of this Devil's technique is left. Prof. Frederick A. Soddy, a distinguished scientist, foresees society's danger with clearness and warns us that if human ideals are not adjusted to the growth of science, and that quickly, the outcome will probably be disastrous.

In his recent book, Men and Machines, Stuart Chase has carefully analyzed and catalogued the inherent dangers of a machine age. I quote the principal dangers from those which he cites:

Mechanized warfare.

The divorce of the trinity of work, play and art, following the mandatory process of specialization.

A certain amount of social maladjustment due to the inevitable breakup of the time-honored folkways of marriage, the family, religion.

The speeding up of life, which cannot be avoided until the proper tempo is formed by a long process of trial and error.

The creation of a small robot class. Mechanization, however automatic, demands a certain number of workers.

Possibly a greater ratio of mental diseases, due to the fact that certain individuals cannot adjust to the mechanical process.

A possible softening of racial stock due to high levels of comfort long maintained.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've just read a curious thing—one of those things that brings you up with a start and sets you wondering. Dr. James M. Doran said it. He's chief of the industrial alcohol bureau of the Treasury Department.

"The bureau, as you know, poisons industrial alcohol with wood alcohol so you can't drink it. If you drink it, you'll go blind and die—horribly. Now they're going to use another denaturant which will make you want to die but you probably won't. Dr. Doran admits that the deaths from wood alcohol were regrettable but, says he:

"'The protection of industrial alcohol from redistillation and thus diversion to illegitimate channels was the primary consideration, although removal of poisons was advisable if that could be done with the alcohol still properly protected.'

"'THE PROTECTION OF INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL . . . WAS THE PRIMARY CONSIDERATION'—that's the phrase that set me wondering. I don't know much about the rights or wrongs of prohibition. I couldn't handle the wet-dry problem if you gave it to me. But I'm always interested in watching results when people begin to think like that.

I know a woman who thinks like that about her housework. She's made a religion of it. Her home is amazing—the despair of every woman who sees it. But in her zeal to keep her house in order she's forgotten her family. She's furious if they upset anything. The youngsters of Hi school age can't invite friends home. Her husband, a friendly, careless big fellow, feels like a stranger inside his own door. He has to go out on the back landing to smoke. It's easy enough to see what will happen to that family within a few years. But Mrs. Blank will never feel responsible. She has been a good housekeeper and that's 'the primary consideration.'

I know a man who thinks about his business like that. During the Christmas rush, one of the boys in the shipping department—a poor, half-starved little codger, working at his first job—tried to steal a package. It was only a cheap sweater, priced $3.49, but the Boss said he had to make an example of him because of the principle of the thing. So he had him taken off in the wagon. Even the arresting officer protested, but "business had to be protected."

And those poor men who were killed at Thanksgiving trying to steal turkeys for their hungry youngsters—remember them? Business was the "primary consideration" there, too. Business justified those bullets—or did it?

I often wonder what happens to individuals—OR NATIONS—who get to thinking like that . . . who become so fanatical about PRINCIPLES that they forget PEOPLE. Seems to me, if I remember my history, that PLENTY happens.

Wise Words

He is raised the higher that he may fall the heavier.—Meander.

We are always beginning to live, but are never living.—Manilius.

As the calling dignifies the man, so the man much more advances his calling.—South.

He who believes no thing, who believes only the shows of things, is not in relation with nature and fact at all.—Carlyle.

When two start into the world together, be that is thrown behind, unless his mind proves generous, will be displeased with the other.—Colton.

A man should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong, which is but saying in other words that he is wiser today than he was yesterday.—Pope.

Affection is still a briber of judgment, and it is hard for a man to admit a reason against the thing he loves, or to confess the force of an argument against an interest.—South.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Poet and Man

Too long I dwelt with words, found my delight
In subtle phrasing of a singing thought!
Too long I was content could I indite
In music's voice the meanings that I caught!
And then came life and laughed at all my pains—
Came life and mocked my foolish, poor desires—
Taught me how soon the joy of living wanes,
With beauty's torch lit, being's unguessed fires.

And now, for scholar or for frosty age
I leave the words I loved too well, too long.
Henceforth, on life's kaleidoscopic stage
I will enact my every phase of song.
Poets love words where life's reflection shines,
While men ask life itself in singing lines.

Text For Today

"Ye are the salt of the earth; but if the salt have lost its savour, wherewith shall it be salted?"—Matthew, v:13.

(The text for today is suggested by the Rev. J. K. F. Horst, pastor, St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, North Side.)

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Standardized Charmers

Fashions in women, like fashions in hats and frocks and costume jewelry, change every few years.

Just now the smart type is the cold, sophisticated, blase young person, who has succeeded the "peppy," jazzy flapper.

The icicle-effect has replaced the St. Vitus-dance-effect, just as the hats which once covered the eyes have backed away to the crown of the head. Cold and hard—that's what!

The Human Refrigerator makes a good headache powder after an overdose of jazz-girl. She is as refreshing as a cold shower. But men are beginning to complain that she bores them, and congeals all their enthusiasm. Men like soft, sweet things—not cold, hard-boiled eggs.

Why must women always STANDARDIZE themselves? Why must they try to prove that Darwin was right, by aping each other until they are as monotonous as a music box with only one tune?

* * *

Why can't a woman just be what God made her? Nature and Divine Wisdom never made any two things exactly alike—not even twins! Variety is the spice of everything—life, love, and particularly of women.

Just because a tall, svelt girl with a languid manner and dreamy eyes makes a fascinating Haughty Isabel, is no reason why a cute little pink-and-white dimpled dumpling should go around with a prison pallor and the frozen look of a detached soul.

Star yourself! Don't be a robot. Feature your own line. Don't trim yourself down or denature yourself to conform to the popular pattern. If you were born with the gift of enthusiasm, don't quench it or put it on ice, just in order to appear sophisticated. Nothing in the world is so infectious as genuine spontaneity and enthusiasm. It's a GIFT!

The reason we admire and long to be like a particular screen star or stage star is because she is NOT like any other star or any other woman in the world. It is her individuality, her personality—her DIFFERENCE—which excites our interest and holds it spellbound.

* * *

The volatile, slangy, irrepressible jazz-girl is out of the picture, and the "frozen beauty" has the stage. And each little robot, who might have been a star in her own particular orbit, will join the satellites and become a poor imitation of every other woman. NO WONDER women make men so tired!

Sherman Was Wrong

He Should Have Said "Peace."

Gen. Sherman said war was hell. He never stood in a breadline in the piping times of peace.

Ask a down and out veteran of the last war which he prefers.

He will tell you "I'll take the war, thanks, every time."

He was a hero then, and a well-fed hero usually. Shells and bullets were not pleasant, but they were no worse than cold and hunger, and perhaps the cries of a sick wife and child at home with nothing to eat and little to wear.

Shells killed you off promptly. They didn't kill you by inches, as starvation does.

Nothing was too good for you then. But apparently your Uncle Sam thinks that you should not complain now. You saved your country, lost your job, and ought to be satisfied.

Of course, Uncle Sam has given you a bonus, which will come in handy in 1945, when it is due. Meanwhile, you are told that it would be very dangerous to give you cash. You might spend your money foolishly, and besides the country needs it to enforce prohibition, or pay the Wickersham commission, or something.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Thoughts while strolling: The sidewalk fountain pen demonstrator who takes a taste of ink now and then, Elmer Rogers of the Palace. The restaurant Princesse, where Pierre started. Leonore Ulric never stands still. Nobody imitates stage stars so well as Willie Howard.

Charles B. Driscoll, a Wichita (Kan.) boy, who made good in the city. What became of tutti-frutti gum? They say Al Capone financed many midget golf courses. Everybody seems terrorized by Capone the big stiff. You know me, Al. Always kidding! A sort of pathetic eagerness about young Teddy Roosevelt.

Blustering Richard Bennett. But a great actor. A woman lurches out of a speakeasy mumbling. A camel's hide cigaret case—$80. Entire nightgowns of satin. Ceres and her cornucopia in Lalique glass. Electrically faked log fires—no heat, but a swell illusion.

Another block sign across the Winter Garden: Show girls going in for Great Danes. Frazier Hunt is the only writer I know who doesn't smoke. What a lucky guy! Arthur Hopkins suggests Old King Cole in miniature. Wonder if Marlene Deitrich's success worries Garbo?

Those morning mounds of grapeseed in front of "cafes." The rat-a-tat-tat of upstairs tap dancing schools. Three theaters dark in a block. If that left-over fly alights on this paper again, it is taking chances! How many remember a desert dish called syllabub?

Most men-about-town types are bores. All child actors trained under Gus Edwards talk alike—Eddie Cantor, George Jessel and Georgie Price for instance. Midtown's acres of pent houses—like villages clinging to Pyrenean crags. S. J. Kaufman breezes by.

Incandescents ripple into nightly twinkle. Times Square a frozen lagoon in flame. Grover Whalen drives by with a red rose in his lapel. Overheard: "She's not bad just modern!" That gentle bleakness of a Fifth avenue night. And above a cold white star.

"Jimmie" James, one of the most popular European correspondents, will be missed by his American friends this summer and likely for summers to come. His roving days are over. He is now chained to a night managing editor's desk in the editorial rooms of the Times. It comes as a deserved promotion but deprives the journalistic world of a bang-up reporter.

* * *

Gen. Grant's old home at No. 3 East Sixty-sixth street has been demolished to make way for a new apartment house. The four-storied brownstone mansion was presented to the war hero and wife by admirers shortly before his world tour. Following his years of military service and two terms in the White House, he planned to live in quiet retirement. While writing his "Memoirs" here he heard of the tragic failure of his Wall Street house—Grant and Ward.

* * *

Older New Yorkers recall how weeping crowds churned about under Gen. Grant's windows when the financial collapse was announced. He was then nearing the Great Adventure, and could only speak with difficulty. On an afternoon in June, 1885, his neighbors recall the stocky, bearded man with high hat and deep burning eyes going for his last drive in Central Park. He was seen no more by the public and passed away a month later near Saratoga Springs.

* * *

There is something of a choke in this lost ad in a New York paper: "White poodle, pink running eyes, body twitch, the result of distemper and almost toothless. No value except to owner." Every dog lover understands.

* * *

"Where," inquires Miss T. F., "and the stationery is scented, too—do you find those extraordinarily big words you use?"

Most of them in the dictionary at my left. But some of those $9.88 ones I make up right in my own head.

In an essay today there was a phrase that suddenly crossed my eyes and sent me spinning. It read: "In the law of his parobolic morphology—." I'm afraid to look it up. I just know it is something about sex again.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

In your desire and effort to please everyone you have come to appear as weak and vacillating.

You can change your manner and your expressed opinions very quickly due to this penchant for popularity.

Yet you wonder why it is that when important matters are to be decided and responsible positions given out you are never called.

Because of your general affability you think some of your friends might place you in some of the jobs they have authority to fill.

But they like you passively for a person who is not troublesome—you are just a comfortable sort of fellow to them.

When they have jobs to fill, they need aggressive, courageous persons who will stand for what they think is right and for the interests they represent.

They do not seek "yes" men.

The successful boss appreciates the employe who will oppose him if his opposition is well founded or based upon principles best for the business.

It is not necessary to be arrogant, self-important and obnoxious but it is possible to be firm and ready to argue the point good-naturedly and with logical reasons.
